ACCORD NEARS ON SOFT COAL WORKING CODE

RETAIL INDUSTRY NEXT TO GET ATTENTION

BY JAMES P. SELVAGE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Aug. 28 (AP)—The long sought agrement on essentials for a competitive code for the bituminous coal industry was announced tonight by Hugh S. Johnson.

The industrial administrator, disclosing the result of the four days of conferences between operators and miners' representatives, said the administration was willing to recommend the agreement to the president and that it cleared the way for an acceptable code.

Campaign Under Way

His announcement came at the end of a day that had brought a warning from him to the conferees that the president was closely watching their progress and was anxious to have the coal code put into operation.

Meanwhile, the administration also was seeking an agrement upon a code for all retailers to bring that mammoth industry within the NRA. Today, too, marked the beginning of the campaign to take the blue eagle into homes to elicit agreements from consumers to buy from establishments that fly the NRA insignia.

Johnson refused to discuss the coal agreement other than to say the code probably would be completed within two or three days.

Retailers, too, were on notice that the administration was determined their code should go to President Roosevelt, before Labor Day, the date Johnson set weeks ago for having the greater portion of the nation's employers under maximum hour-minimum wage agreements.

Labor Dissatisfied

Textiles, steel, automobiles, lumber, oil and other big industries are aligned already with the NRA program.

Additional significance attached to the coal charter because of the threat of further labor disturbances unless the industry is stabilized quickly. Strikes in Pennsylvania and other places have been arbitrated by the national labor board, and the miners returned to work with the hope that the code would satisfy everybody.

Tomorrow, Senator Wagner of New York is to return to the capital to sit for the first time as chairman of the labor board which President Roosevelt created with the intent of ending future strikes through government mediation.

It became clear, meanwhile, that the promulgation of the automobile code had not ended the dispute over its labor provisions.

From arms to arm chair, from fighting to fanning . . . General Tajashi Hishikari, army member of the Japanese War Council, enjoys a bit of relaxation after being made commander-in-chief of the Kwantung army, plus ambassador to Manchukuo, plus governor-general of the Kwantung leased territory.

War on Rackets, Kidnaping Bar Association Keynote

Grand Rapids, Aug. 28 (AP)—Their keynote, a war to the finish against racketeering and kidnaping, was laid today before six hundred attorneys from various sections of the country, the vanguard of the host expected for the annual convention of the American Bar association which convenes Wednesday for three days.

The attorneys divided today into sectional meetings and special conferences, most notable the national conference of attorneys general, which heard its president,, James M. Ogden, former attorney general of Indiana pledge the organization to give its "every assistance" to the federal government's campaign against crime.

Earlier in the day Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien, of Michigan, told the gathering there was not a "court in the land" which would dare to hold President Roosevelt's recovery program unconstitutional.

"Where is the court that will attempt to mutiny?" he demanded. "Where is the court that will attempt to scuttle the ship of state?"

At another gathering, that of the conference of bar association delegates, David A. Simons of Houston, Tex., a vice-president of the American Bar association and chairman of the conference, called upon the legal profession to organize a campaign which not only would drive from its ranks the unscrupulous and dishonest attorney but would place effective bars against the entry of objectionable persons.

In his pledge of the support of attorneys general in the war on crime, Ogden declared:

"The attitude of disrespect for law often has been nurtured and encouraged by the attitude and connivance of these high in authority. The capitalization of crime through racketeering and kidnaping is our most dangerous as well as the most difficult problem."

"Officers and witnesses alike must be made to feel that the strong arm of the law is back of them to protect them to the fullest extent regardless of the threats of gangster reprisal.

"All law enforcing agencies—city, county, state and nation—should cooperate together in this vital work of exterminating the racketeer and the kidnaper. These menaces to the public welfare must be made to understand there is a united army against them to put an end to their nefarious acts."

O'Brien, in his address, said he had to admit that the national recovery act "offends against all the cherished constitutional maxims relating to due process of law and the taking of private property for public use without just compensation," but he continued: "The courts of this country always will be repected as they always have been and ought to be, but no court will be allowed to stand in the path of progress toward a more just and equitable social ssytem."

Tomorrow the preconvention activities will be featured by a conference of executives and secretaries of state bar associations regardless of whether they are affiliated with the American Bar association. It was called to outline a uniform program of action in meeting many pressing problems, principal among them crime and the unscrupulous lawyer. There will be no set program. The discussions will be of a round table nature with only a list of problems before the delegates.

GANGSTER GUNS GET SCALZITTI

Alcohol Peddler Took In Too Much Territory, Police Theory

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP)—With machine gun, shotgun, and pistol, four gangster assassins opened fire on John Scalzitti, 37, today on busy 63rd street on the South Side.

Their victim slumped over with bullet wounds in the abdomen from all three of the weapons. Police said he was an alcohol peddler who became over-ambitious in expanding his territory.

Women and children on the crowded thoroughfare fled for safety when the firing began. One bullet struck the skirt of a 15 year old girl.

A block away a traffic policeman ran toward the speeding automobile. The gunmen pointed their weapons at him. He retreated and the car speeded on without a shot being fired.

At South Town hospital, Scalzitti moaned: "I don't know why I was shot or who did it. I never harmed a soul in my life. They must have been looking for someone else."

Physicians said he probably would die.

Japanese Blame U. S. Influences In Assassination

Tokyo, Aug. 28 (AP)—The alleged influence of the United States on Japanese civilian officials was cited in the defense of 11 naval officers charged with complicity in the assassination last year of Premier Isuyochi Inukai as their court martial neared an end today.

The young officers were justified, their attorneys held, in considering acceptance by Japan of the London naval treaty a "national beraya!" to the United States. Evidence offered included stenographic minutes of the American senate foreign relations committee debate concerning the treaty in 1930.

The surrender of Japanese civilian authorities to "American diplomatic blandishments" was held to be the result of such activities as a so-called social campaign by former acting United States Ambassador William R. Castle, Jr., and his wife when they were in Japan three years ago.

Lamson Neighbor Says She Smelled Cloth In Bonfire

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 28 (AP)—The sensation first of "burning meat and then of burning cloth" came from the fire over which David A. Lamson was working, an hour before his pretty wife was found dead, Mrs. Sylvia G. Bailey, a neighbor, testified today at Lamson's murder trial.

Mrs. Bailey, wife of a Stanford university history professor, declared the odors from the fire were "most distressing." She said she first noticed dense smoke from the bonfire about 8:15 a. m. last May 30. A half hour later, she declared, there came an odor of burning meat and after that of burning cloth.

MOLEY RESIGNS TO BE EDITOR

Report of Disagreement With Secretary Hull Denied

New York, Aug. 28. (AP)—Raymond Moley, one of the president's closest advisors, said today reports he resigned as assistant secretary of state because of a disagreement with Secretary Hull were "interesting, but just not true."

"I certainly am not aware of any conflict, except that in a big administration such as the one in Washington there always are differences of opition," said Moley. "But honestly, I don't see any important conflict at all."

Moley resigned to become editor of a magazine called by its publisher, Vincent Astor, personal friend of President Roosevelt, "an adventure in national political journalism."

"I'd ten times rather do this than hold a public office," said Moley, advisor to the president for more than two years on domestic and foreign policies of an economic nature.

Although his resignation becomes effective September 1, Moley said he would complete his report on crime and racketeering undertaken at the president's request. Moley, who will continue to teach at Columbia University, said he expected the report to be finished between September 15 and 20.

Astor said plans for the magazine were still nebulous ,but that it would be of tabloid size, carry a Washington dateline, and sell for 5 cents weekly or $2 a year. He said it would be in no sense a newspaper, print feature articles and no fiction.

Ten Percent Wage Increase Sought On Lake Carriers

Cleveland, Aug. 28. (AP)—An increase of 10 per cent in the wages of all employes on lake ships owned by members of the Lake Carriers association was recommended to the membership by the association's executive committee here today. Approximately 6,000 men would be affected.

The executive committee also appointed a sub-committee to seek an interview with Deputy NRA Administrator William H. Davis in Washington, with a view toward placing the lake carriers under a code.

The action came within a week after four vessels unions had suggested a code for lake carriers to Washington officials of the NRA. The union code would provide minimum wages of $105 a month for able seamen, and $77 for ordinary seamen, with a maximum of six hours work a day.

The unions also demanded the right to collective bargaining in their suggested code.

MOGAN DEFENDS NEW HAT RACKS

Abbott Charges Stack Tries to Control All Purchases

Lansing, Aug. 28. (AP)—A new recruit joined the fight today among members of Governor Comstock's official cabinet as James E. Mogan, managing director of the state board of tax administration, defended expenditures for outfitting the sales tax board's headquarters.

Mogan's answer was directed against Burnett J. Abbott, secretary of the state administrative board, who implicated extravagance on the part of the sales tax board in a statement last week. Abbott took exception to a letter from Auditor General John K. Stack, Jr., declaring the former had made purchases without the sanction of the administrative board. Abbott promised a show down on wether Stack is to control all purchases.

In his statement, Abbott charged the sales tax board, of which Stack is chairman, had ignored the prison industries in outfitting its offices. He said the board had spent $9.50 for hat racks and waste paper baskets.

Mogan admitted as Abbott had claimed that $6,000 had been spent for the sales tax office furniture but said economies had been exercised. He said prison made goods were rejected because they were priced too highly for their quality.

400 WORKERS IN WALK-OUT; N. R. A. TO ACT

STONES ARE THROWN BY PHILADELPHIA MOB OF 300

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 28. (AP)—A. J. Barnaud, head of the NRA in Michigan, tonight had assumed an active part in the strike of more than 400 employes of the Hillsdale Manufacturing company, makers of garments, which today closed two of the company's three plants.

Workers in the company's plants at Hillsdale and Coldwater walked out early today when, according to labor leaders, Joseph Baumgarten, president of the company, refused to raise the wages of all employes to the minimum of $13 a week under the NRA textile code.

Wage in Dispute

George C. Slater, Chicago, a representative of the United Garment Workers of America, said that the company recently has displayed NRA emblems, and that a placard on the time clock notified employes that the plant was operating under the NRA textile code.

Slater and other representatives of the employes were in conference with Baumgarten and other company officials over the week-end, but today said that no agreement to establish the minimum wage under the NRA code had been reached.

A few hours after the walkout occurred, Barnaud sent a telegram to Slater asking for a complete statement of the facts surrounding the walkout, and expressing regret that "labor and employer cannot arrive at a solution of labor and other problems during this special season set aside by President Roosevelt for complete harmony." He asked that "earnest efforts be made to adjust the Hillsdale situation immediately."

No Disorders

Although more than a score of pickets today were stationed at the entrances to the plant, there was no disorder, authorities said. Mass meetings at a nearby fair grounds were addressed by Slater, Roy Stanley, local president of the recently organized Hillsdale union, and others.

According to Slater workers who returned to the factory today after receiving pay checks Saturday which they said were under the $13 minimum, asked Stanley whether an agreement had been reached in a conference with Baumgarten over the week-end. When he replied that none had been reached, Slater said the employes walked out without awaiting an order from union officials.

Baumgarten today refused to make a statement, and enquirers were informed by telephone that he was "out of the city." It was not known whether further conferences would be arranged between Baumgarten and representatives of the workers.

A third plant of the company at Hudson late today had not been affected by the walkouts in the Hillsids and Coldwater units. Slater said that approximately 350 workers had walked out of the Hillside plant, to be joined later by about 90 at Coldwater.

DAMPNESS AIDS FIRE FIGHTERS

Lull Allows 4,000 Men to Resume Work in Oregon Blaze

Portland, Ore., Aug. 28. (AP)—Mountainous billows of smoke hid lurking, treacherous flames today along a forty mile front in northwestern Oregon as slumbering winds and moisture from the ocean permitted 4,000 fire fighters to renew their attack on the most devastating conflagration that ever swept over the forest lands of the state.

For 14 days the flames had ridden high gales of wind to spread with explosive force over thousands of acres of the fine timber. Fire wardens have estimated the loss at between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000.

The general range of the fire extends about 40 miles from the Elsie district in Clatsop county southward to the vicinity of Blaine, in southern Tillamook county. The heart of the fire center lies about 45 miles directly west of Portland.

During the night gentle showers came from the north and fog was swept in from the Pacific. The wind died and the fire fighters, praying for cloudbursts took new heart.

WET VOTE DUE IN WASHINGTON

Two to One Victory for Repeal Predicted in Election Today

Seattle, Aug. 28. (AP)—Repeal organizations predicted tonight that Washington voters would cast a majority of two to one against prohibition at the state election tomorrow on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, while dry headquarters issued a statement saying the vote may prove a surprise to those forecasting big wet majorities.

Washington is the 24th street to vote on repeal, 23 other states having voted against national prohibition.

Election officials estimated that at least 350,000 voters will go to the polls, approximately half the number that cast ballots in the general election last fall.

The 46 legislative districts will name delegates to the state constitutional convention as separate units and the popular vote of the state will mean nothing in the final count. Last fall 341,450 votes were cast to repeal the state bone dry laws, while 208,211 persons voted dry.

Encephalis Spread Puzzling Science

St. Louis, Aug. 28 (AP)—Lights in St. Louis medical centers are burning far into the night as science, tired eyed but undiscouraged, seeks an explanation for an ever-widening spread of a mysterious "sleeping sickness" which has claimed 40 lives.

The valiant but so far futile fight has claimed the attention of federal, state and local authorities. Tomorrow Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, interested so far as a long distance director of operations, is expected to view the situation at first hand.

POLICE CHIEFS AT MARQUETTE

Don Leonard, Frank Picard Are Speakers at Convention

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 28 (AP)—Michigan police chiefs opened their tenth annual convention here today with a series of meetings at which problems of law enforcement officers were discussed by prominent police authorities.

About 100 delegates, many with their families, are attending the convention which will close Wednesday.

The 100 inspectors, working in the state under the Michigan liquor commissioner are not collecting agents and are not out to collect taxes, but are law-enforcing officers whose duty it is to work with county and city officers, Frank Picard, chairman of the commission, told the chiefs.

Picard pointed out that if the state did not have the inspectors every city would have to add more men to do their work. He said that the state is not only aiming to control 3.2 beer, but is setting up a system for control of all liquors, if and when the prohibition amendment is repealed.

The state of Michigan is doing more than other states to drive out the gangster and racketeer by this method of granting brewery licenses, he said, and declared that many other states are following Michigan's plan of control.

Speaking on "The Criminal Problem," Lieutenant Donald S. Leonard, of the Michigan state police, presented a picture of the causes of crime and pointed out that the criminal is morally supported by the people he plunders which makes him bold. Leonard said the criminal takes advantage of the apthetic attitude of the public, which is reflected in the entire round for law enforcement activity.

Leonard spoke at the noon-day meeting of the Marquette Rotary Club.

Lou J. Flint, executive vice president of the Citizens Committee of Detroit and a member of the Detroit Board of Commerce, discussed "rackets, the police and the public," during which he told of rackets worked upon innocent victims at a cost of millions of dollars and related methods and means used by crooks in "working" the public.

Charles Carmody, inspector of the Detroit police department bureau of identification, spoke on the preservation of fingerprints at the scene of the crime, outlining to the officers the need of obtaining prints, if any procurable, immediately after discovery of the crime. Inspector Carmody advised officers never to touch or move articles or bodies until a finger print expert has had an opportunity to go over the ground.

pany, breaking windows and damaging motor vehicles, and then attempted to storm it, only to be driven off with live steam. A score were slightly scalded or hurt. Two were arrested.

Approximately 150 strikers and sympathizers a little later attacked the cleaning and dyeing plant of Bornot, Inc., breaking more windows, but were routed by a police detachment. Four men and a woman were taken into custody.

These arrests brought the total of the day's strike prisoners to 13, three having been seized in each of two other demonstrations. Joseph Brooks, 35, union organizer and two girl pickets were accused of trying to invade the shop of David I. Ingber and company, handbag makers, and three men were arrested during a demonstration outside the Cambria Silk Hosiery company's mill.

Charles B. Barnes, mediator for the national labor board, met today with officials of the Cambria company and strike leaders, announcing that he expected an early settlement of the walkout.

Barnes has also been active in the dyeing and cleaning strike, which involves 4,000 workers. Representatives of employers and employes both say they have reached an agreement on major points and expect the strike to end this week.

Immediate Reform Demanded In Cuba

Havana, Aug. 28 (AP)—The resignation of two members of President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes' cabinet was threatened today unless he takes immediate action to effect constitutional reforms.

The powerful ABC revolutionary society, a spokesman for the organization said, will withdraw Secretary of the Treasury Joaquin Martinez Saenz and Minister of Justice Carlos Saladrigas from the government unless this is done.

It was reported that the president had not planned to have the constitution altered until after the general election set for Feb. 24, 1934. The nationalist party has opposed any attempt to modify the constitution.

PRISONERS FLEE DURING CHURCH

Wayne County Escaper Thought Surrounded In Swamplands

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 28 (AP)—Sheriff's officers from St. Clair and Wayne counties tonight had surrounded a 2,000 acre swamp at Tappan Junction four miles from here, in the belief that Steven Andrews, one of the four men who escaped from the Wayne county jail yesterday, was in hiding there.

More than two score deputies led by Sheriff Thomas Wilcox of Wayne county and Sheriff William L. Van Antwerp, St. Clair county, took part in the search.

Statements by the proprietress of a nearby drug store who said she sold food this morning to a man answering Andrews' description, and by a negro who told Sheriff Van Antwerp that he had been questioned about freight train schedules at the junction by a man resembling Andrews, led authorities to center their search there.

Late this afternoon Elton Munger, 16, Port Huron, was wounded in the shoulder by a shot fired by Deputy Sheriff Howard Lohr. The officer said that Munger was shot after he began to run when ordered by Lohr to halt. His two companions were questioned by authorities. Munger's condition was said by hospital officials not to be serious.

Andrews gained his freedom early yesterday by a bold dash from Sunday church services in the jail with three companions who chose the hour of devotions for their attempt. Seizing a minister and girl organist as living shields, the four slugged two guards and cowed six others, as they made their way to the street.

One of the four, Thomas Pyle, 44, was armed with a gun and shot it out with officers who captured him after a half hour chase through downtown city streets. William Ryan, 44, and Julius Wild, 35, the other two who escaped, were recaptured in a hotel a short distance from the jail.

Meanwhile police were holding Mrs. Madge Andrews, 25 year old wife of Andrews, who they said has admitted smuggling a gun into the prison last Thursday, strapped to her leg above the knee. The gun was given to her husband who passed it to Pyle during the church services, Sheriff Wilcox said. Wilcox said that he would seek a warrant charging Mrs. Andrews with being an accessory before the fact in an assault with intent to kill.

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—Horatio J. Abbott, collector of internal revenue for the Michigan district, today announced confirmation from Washington of the appointment of Charles T. Fisher, Jr., of Detroit, as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Detroit. Fisher, who will take office September 15, succeeds John Hicks, formerly of Grand Rapids.

Abbott also announced the confirmation of his appointment of Reuben Rossman, Jackson, Mich., attorney as receiver for the Union & People's National bank of Jackson. Rossman will liquidate the business of the old bank, which is being superseded by the new organization.

FORD IS HOLDOUT

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—Officials of the automotive industry tonight generally were of the opinion that the approval by President Roosevelt of an NRA code for the industry does not change the situation in the industry so far as organization and unionization are concerned.

Comment on the code—none was forthcoming from Henry Ford, who has not yet signed—in the main was that little increase in employment will be shown for a month or two. This is the automobile's industry's slack season, and officials pointed out that employment naturally is not high at present.

Ford officials, in the absence of Henry and Edsel Ford on vacation, declined to comment locally on the signing of the code by members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. They subsequently declined to discuss a report that Ford intends to place in effect even more beneficial wage and hour scales than specified in the code, pointing out that the report did not come from the Ford organization.

The Fords are expected to return to Detroit later this week.

61,146 IN MICHIGAN

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—Ranks of the NRA in Michigan today were swelled by 781 firms who signed agreements, bringing the total number of firms in the state under NRA provisions to 61,146, employing 446,393 workers, it was announced here.

Among the signers today were the West Michigan Furniture company, of Holland, employing 145, and the Menominee Box & Lumber company, with 100 workers.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt speeded up his national recovery campaign today and then blandly listened over the tea cups to the trials of the international banking leaders for stabilization of the foreign exchange.

He directed Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to work out immediately a program for extending temporary credit through the banks to the members of NRA to tide them over the sudden expansion of work and wages.

He decided upon a number of new projects to be financed through the $3,300,000,000 public works fund to make more jobs in a long talk with Secretary Ickes, the administrator of this proposition.

Must Move Fast

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes determined that this tremendous job-making effort must be speeded ahead at a greater rate and they were seriously considering tonight putting a forfeiture clause in future allotments to declare them revoked if work was not started in a specified time.

The hard driving public works administrator was considerably aroused over the delay in getting some of the major projects into operation. Taking off his glasses, he firmly announced "we are doing all we can to jack up the slow ones and we may employ the forfeiture clause hereafter."

The president sent Jones hurrying back to Washington by an early afternoon train to get the government aides to work on a proposal to assure credit for the employers who are subscribing to his new deal for a spread of jobs and an increase of pay.

This is one of the fifty or more ways for aiding the Roosevelt campaign for higher commodity prices and wages which some described as inflation.

Norman Arrives

But it was ordered simply as a matter of developing this program. Mr. Roosevelt realizes that in some instances hardships are resulting from the adherence to his recovery agreements. He wants the employers to be sure of credit to span the period between increased overhead and receipt of higher returns for the goods.

The credit expansion movement is to be undertaken through the banking system, but whether the federal reserve system will be employed or direct negotiations made by the government with the banks has not been determined.

There was agreement here today that the credit is available so far as the government is concerned. Mr. Roosevelt now wants the banks to do their part.

As mysterious as ever, Montagu Norman, the governor of the Bank of England, came here late today accompanied by George Harrison, the governor of the federal reserve bank of New York. Mr. Norman declined to talk at all before entering the summer White House. It has been assumed that Norman and Harrison have been discussing the advisability of bringing about a stabilization of currency in the foreign exchange.

LONG ATTACKED, CUT BY KNIFER

Louisiana Senator Tells Story of "Ganging" In Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28 (AP)—In a written statement issued tonight, Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, declared a gash on his forehead had been inflicted Saturday night by a man who attacked him with a knife while he was in a wash room at a charity benefit on Long Island, N. Y.

The senator called the attack a "ganging" by three or four men he did not know.

He said he was struck from behind and that when he turned three or four men "covered" him. One of them struck at his head with a "knife or something sharp," he said, adding that he ducked so that it grazed his forehead.

The senator said he had been invited to the benefit by persons connected with the music composers and publishers. He said he at first declined but later consented.

"I have been repeatedly threatened," the senator said. "any number of warnings have been given, even by column writers, that such a thing would occur to me sooner or later. I was lucky to have escaped with such trivial injury and am gratetful."

The senator is here to attend the national encampment of the veterans of foreign wars. With the Louisiana delegation he hopes to take next year's convention to Louisiana.

HAS ENCEPHALITIS

Sturgis, Mich., Aug. 28—Physicians said today that Kenneth Davis, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Sturgis, is suffering from sleeping sickness. The child has been ill for several days, and authorities said the illness has been definitely diagnosed as encephalitis, or sleeping sickness.

NO EXEMPTIONS FOR SALES TAX

Democrats Outnumber Frank Fitzgerald on Board

Lansing, Aug. 28 (AP)—The state board of tax administration today appeared prepared to stand fast on its decision to enforce the sales tax according to the letter of the law. A majority of the members indicated they will approve no exemptions unless a court interpretation compels such action or until the legislature changes the statute.

Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, last week said he would seek exemptions for articles used on industrial and agricultural production. He is outnumbered on the board, however. The other members are John K. Stack, Jr., auditor general, Theodore I. Fry, state treasurer, and James E. Mogan, director. The latter three are Democrats and Fitzgerald is a Republican.

The first court ruling on the sales tax law was expected in the Wayne circuit court. Fry and Mogan said they are committed to complying with the letter of the law unless the Wayne circuit court holds it invalid or subject to a different interpretation. They said they are in sympathy with certain claims for exemption but contended they are powerless to go beyond the wording of the act. A resolution adopted by the legislature declaring the intent was to apply the three percent sales levy only against strictly retail sales was declared by them to be meaningless as far as changing the statute is concerned.

Rep. Tracy W. Southworth, Democrat, Monroe, one of the house members who pushed through the resolution proposing to limit the tax to retail sales, said today the board, in his opinion, has "double crossed" the legislature. He said it was not the legislative intent to have the act interpreted to apply the tax to sales of machinery, feed, factory equipment, cartons and containers and other things used in agricultural or industrial production of commodities which in turn are sold to other consumers.

Jobless Menominee Man Drowns Self

Menominee, Aug. 28 (Special)—Godfrey "Jake" Anderson, 53, of 116 Eveland court, formerly employed as a trucker in the Chicago & North Western railroad's freight station here, took his own life this morning by jumping from the end of the Riley & Hinkel coal dock here into Green bay.

His body was discovered floating near the dock about a half hour later by Patrolman John Carey and Fireman George Dumouchelle in a city lifeboat.

Unemployed and despondent, Mr. Anderson had been drinking of late, police reported. Mrs. Cecelia Anderson, the widowed mother with whom he had made his home on Eveland court, reported to police that he had paced the floor through the night and this morning about 5:30 o'clock had fled the house, coatless and hatless, with the announced intention of drowning himself.

Police Called

Mrs. Anderson asked a neighbor, Robert Rick, to notify police. Patrolman Carey visited the neighborhood, but could find no trace of Anderson. Off the Riley & Hinker dock end Patrolman Carey saw bubbles. Believing that Anderson might have drowned himself, he summoned aid from the city fire department. George Dumouchelle and Clarence Dobbin answered the call.

A lifeboat was launched and while Dobbin was turning the fire truck about Carey and Dumouchelle announced that they had recovered the body.

Labianco suffered an injury to his hand and the fight had to be stopped. He weighed 168 pounds; Ebbetts 173.

BLINKER INJURED

Newark, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP)—Unknown Winston, 190, of Hartford, Conn., won a decision tonight over Tony Galento, 220, of Orange, in the feature 10-round bout at Dreamland Park. Galento's eyes began bleeding in the fifth round and gave him considerable trouble to the end. Henry Lewis was referee.

EASY FOR FREDDIE

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP)—Freddie Heinz, Saginaw, Mich., middleweight, won a decision victory over Bud Saltis of Chicago, in the eight round top event of a boxing card tonight.

Heinz, somewhat of a clown, easily outboxed the hard hitting Chicago youngster. He weighed 162½ pounds, to 162 for Saltis.

Gladstone Man Is Held In Menominee As Holdup Suspect

Menominee, Aug. 28 (Special)—Gilbert Vanderlinden, 27, of Route 1, Gladstone, was held today in the county jail without charge following arrest by Conservation Officer Joseph Hornick as a suspect in the armed holdup of Hornick Saturday night by a headlighter whom he surprised hunting deer at Edward Barstow's hunting camp near Fox, Cedarville township.

Officers today contemplated bringing a charge of resisting an officer against Vanderlinden.

Vanderlinden was arrested yesterday morning at the Roy Peterson farm in Cedarville township on M-35 by Hornick while he was inspecting a touring car with a winter top which Hornick had discovered in the brush near the holdup scene after the holdup Saturday night and put out of commission by shutting off the gasoline and removing the distributor head.

Robert Furlong, district chief and Herman Liesner, of Escanaba, conservation department officials visited Fox yesterday to pursue investigation of the holdup.

Vanderlinden's wife visited him in the county jail.

Vanderlinden was familiar with the country about Fox, Hornick reported, having worked for the Raymond Construction company on the orad at Fox, recently.

county, and one 300-acre blaze in the Black Lake state forest in Cheboygan county. All of the fires were reported out of control.

George R. Hogarth, state conservation director, feared a serious spread of the fires. Weather conditions were reported exceedingly unfavorable for control work. A high wind and low humidity prevailed.

Hogarth said Savre's departure was the only emergency precaution taken directly by him but that undoubtedly all available labor will be summoned if the fires are serious enough.

The last serious fires were reported from the upper peninsula the first week of the month with damage concentrated in the Escanaba and Crystal Falls areas.

VILLAGE THREATENED

St. James, Beaver Island, Mich., Aug. 28 (AP)—A forest fire less than four miles south and west of this community of 300 persons, was brought under control late today by the efforts of scores of fire fighters who battled the flames all day against an high wind.

The wind fanned the flames toward the village, and some fear had been expressed earlier in the day for its safety as the land is heavily wooded to the town limits.

Meanwhile another fire was burning unchecked eight miles from the town, near the center of the island. All available fire fighters were rushed to the scene in an attempt to check further inroads by the blaze.

Beaver Island is located in northern Lake Michigan, near the Michigan shore line.

RECORDS ASKED BY BANK JURY

Couzens' Charge Nothing Criminal, Declares Arthur J. Lacy

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—A call for the records of two Detroit trust companies, for the purpose of a "thorough examination," went out today from the one-man Detroit bank jury, the first move to follow charges by Senator James Couzens (R. Mich.) that trust company officials had "acted iniquitously" preceding Michigan's famous banking holiday.

The call, issued by Judge Harry B. Keidan, sitting as the one man jury, interrupted testimony of Arthur J. Lacy, Senator Couzens' personal attorney, who scored New York bankers before the jury as "cold-blooded" and declared he did not believe there was anything criminal in a charge made by the senator against one trust company.

Conservators of the two companies, the Union Guardian Trust Co., and the Detroit Trust Co., must appear in court, Judge Keidan said, with all the records of the two institutions. Examination will be conducted by the conservators, with the cooperation of the state attorney-general and the prosecutor's office. Harr J. Fox, conservator for the Detroit Trust Co., was called to court today and given the order. George H. Kirchner, for the Union Guardian, will be called as soon as he returns from a business trip.

Bankrupt Furniture Company Auctioned

Sturgis, Mich., Aug. 28 (AP)—The Aulsbrook, Jones, Grobisher Furniture corporation, recently declared bankrupt, was sold at auction today for $21,000 to E. C. Wright, representing local interests with plans to reopen the company's two factories here.

The sale was made by James G. Van Horn, trustee, over the protest of A. Dembinsky, of Grand Rapids, another bidder, and is subject to confirmation by Charles B. Blair, referee in bankruptcy at Grand Rapids.

STATE AIRPORT SYSTEM FAILED

Sommers Shows Interest in Work Done by C. C. C. Crews

Michigan is developing an excellent system of airports and landing fields at a very low cost to the State, according to J. E. Sommers, airport specialist of the U. S. Department of Commerce, who made a tour of inspection of several of the fields with Lieut.-Col. Floyd E. Evans, State Aeronautics Director.

Mr. Sommers displayed particular interest in the fields being constructed in the Upper Peninsula and the northern part of the Lower Peninsula, with C. C. C. labor. Located in most instances entirely on state or federal-owned land, these emergency landing fields represent only a trivial investment of State money, but tend to remove much of the hazard that has accompanied flying in the wooded northern areas.

"These fields now under construction will be much better three years from now than today," Mr. Sommers said. "By that time they will be covered with turf, and will make fine landing places. In fact, some of the fields finished last year already show a great improvement."

In addition to stimulating the use of planes by hunters and tourists throughout the State, these fields are of considerable potential value in forest fire fighting, Mr. Sommers believes. Surveys of dangerous blazes can be made much more rapidly and accurately from the air, he pointed out, enabling more intelligent direction of fire fighting crews and of rescue efforts.

Progress reports on state landing fields under construction largely with C. C. C. labor, have been issued by Lieut.-Col. Floyd E. Evans, State Aeronautics Director, as follows:

Those New Ideas In Economics

Fixing Prices—Various Routes Toward the Same End.

BY J. R. BRACKETT

Washington (AP)—Whether price-fixing is included in the codes approved by the President is a subject of argument among NRA officials and other experts.

While the attitude of the administration has generally opposed price fixing there are provisions in every code thus far approved that either provide goods shall not be sold below the cost of production as determined by uniform cost accounting methods or at prices different from those set by current price lists, or by even more definite means.

Costs May Be Equal

Since costs of production in the more efficient companies are likely to be fairly equal, some experts hold that this feature of the codes has the effect of fixing prices, except where it tends to increase the efficiency of plants that seek to reduce labor and costs and thereby obtain a competitive advantage.

One result of such a drive for efficiency, as seen by these experts, is that labor-saving machinery might be introduced with a depressing effect on employment. Other provisions, however, attempt to prevent the use of such machinery where it would reduce employment.

The provision that prices may not vary from current price lists has a similar price-fixing effect since these lists may not be changed quickly enough to provide competitive advantages.

The oil and steel codes, as well as other codes not yet approved, go even further toward price-fixing when they set up differentials and basing points.

Definite Statement Asked

A vast number of the codes that have not come up for hearing yet ask everything ranging from these somewhat general provisions to explicit statements of what prices should be. The argument is that prices must be fixed in order to prevent cut-throat competition and to guarantee that incomes shall be sufficient to maintain the wages as scheduled.

Proponents of price-fixing further argue that the administrators of the codes could stop excessive prices, and that elimination of this problem would place competition on a basis of service to the public rather than on prices.

USE LESS OIL!

GET RID OF WASTEFUL SLUDGE—USE

New Anti-Sludge

ISO-VIS "D"

Add Fewer Quarts Between Drains

As long as there's sludge in your motor you'll waste oil. For sludge fouls filter screens, causes valves to become sluggish and rings to stick. Once the rings are stuck or slowed down, the piston begins pumping oil. In fact, next to high speed, stuck rings are a major cause of excessive oil consumption.

Avoid sludge formation by using new Iso-Vis "D", the anti-sludge motor oil. It won't sludge under the hardest, hottest driving. It tends to loosen up sludge formed by previous oils. It lubricates fully, keeps rings and valves lively and free. Thus it reduces oil consumption and keeps oil cost to the minimum.

FORMERLY 30¢ Now only 25¢ A QUART PLUS TAX

No matter what kind of oil you use— Try Iso-Vis "D"

You can pay more, but you can't buy better oil. Many Iso-Vis "D" users who formerly paid 5 to 10¢ more per quart for oil now find that Iso-Vis "D" gives them better lubrication and requires fewer quarts between drains. Don't add good oil to bad. Give your motor a new start. Drain, flush and refill with anti-sludge Iso-Vis "D".

DRIVE IS STARTED

WITH evidence accumulating that receipts from Michigan's sales tax are to exceed the expectations of the most optimistic backers of the plan, a concerted drive has been started by school authorities of the state for an immediate monthly apportionment of $750,000 from sales tax funds, for the support of the schools of Michigan. Evidence has been tabulated showing that with funds now available schools in Michigan will only be able to function from 24 to 34 weeks of the coming school year and to meet this situation statewide meetings are to be held, to urge the adoption by the state administrative board of the monthly apportionment plan of disbursing funds to the schools from sales tax receipts. The plan is being sponsored by a state committee of 17, made up of school board representatives from all sections of Michigan, who are arranging meetings to be held in every county of the state, in order that the people may be aroused to the desperate situation being faced by school authorities and in order, further, that the greatest possible pressure may be brought to bear on members of the state administrative board.

Failing to secure action from that board, it is planned to develop a statewide demand for a special session of the state legislature, to be held in October rather than in January, as planned, in order that the responsibility for keeping Michigan's schools open may be put directly up to the legislators, who dodged the issue at the regular session.

Ever since early in last fall the necessity for state support for the schools, if they are to operate through the school year opening next week, has been generally recognized.

A definite plan has now been devised to meet this need from funds that are available and which by every consideration of right and justice should be as available for school payrolls, as they are for meeting political payrolls of state officials and departmental employes.

MOLEY STEPS DOWN

THE resignation of Prof. Moley, chief of the Washington brain trust, to enter private life as a magazine editor, may mean one of two things. It may mean that friction, rumors of which have been coming out of Washington for several weeks, between Prof. Moley and Secretary Hull, reached the point where it meant either the resignation of Moley or of Secretary Hull. Again it may mean the carrying out of a plan by President Roosevelt, also rumored from the national capital repeatedly, to use his collegiate brain trust to formulate programs of action for beating the depression and then to place the execution of those plans in the minds of politically minded department heads.

It has been known for some time that Prof. Moley and Secretary Hull have not "lived together" as amicably as had been hoped. Some evidence has also been given of President Roosevelt's recognition of the fact that while college trained economists could be used to advantage in the formulation of plans, public reaction to the administration of those plans by men unaccustomed and untrained in public contacts, might not secure the best results.

Whatver the cause, the most unique figure in the history of American politics and one who has held much of the national spot light for several months, is to step down.

LETS VARY MONOTONY

THIS three to one majority vote, for the repeal of national prohibition, is getting to be monotonous. It has been by such a vote that most of the states, in which prohibition repeal has been submitted, have recorded their sentiment for doing away with the Eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution. Texas is the latest state to roll up the usual three to one majority, permitting that state to become the twenty-third on record for abandonment of the noble experiment.

Apparently from the results recorded in the voting up to this time, compliance with election plans in the remaining 13 states, necessary to insure repeal, is merely a matter of form, but it would vary the monotony if some of those states would return either a four to one or even a two to one vote, just for the sake of variety.

GET READY FOR SCHOOL

APPROXIMATELY 30,000,000 children, ranging from near-graduates to kindergarteners, will converge on our streets and highways this September, all approaching central points. Through the summer they have been scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land; now they are to be mobilized, crossing our city thoroughfares or country lanes in long lines going to school or coming home.

It is the solemn duty of every motorist to see to it that these youngsters have a safe passage. By following a few simple rules, he can help cut down the toll of 3,400 children killed and 152,550 injured in 1932. Every motorist should remember to approach a school zone with care; to slow down at all intersections; to watch his speed on curves in the country. Above all, he should look out for the unexpected. Children who meet after two months' separation, become so absorbed that they forget about the danger of dashing into the roadway, darting from behind parked cars, or trying to retrieve a ball from under the fender of a moving vehicle. The motorist must do their thinking for them.

The reduction in motor accidents to children of school age in the United States, is the brightest picture in the safety movement, but there still remains much to be done to further reduce the number of tragedies—90 per cent of which are avoidable. Educators, school authorities and teachers constantly emphasize the dangers of modern traffic conditions, to the children. The one person able to bring about great improvement is the motorist. He should drive at all times as he would if his child were out in that crowd ahead.

NO MORE TOOTHACHES

DR. FRANK M. CASTO, president-elect of the American Dental Association, predicts that the toothache will be practically unknown in another hundred years. The science of preventive dentistry is advancing so fast, and people are getting so well educated to its advantages, that few teeth will ever reach the stage in which they give pain.

All of this is a very glittering and attractive sort of picture, surely; and it leads one to speculate idly on the attitude our grandchildren will have when they look back at the conditions under which we are living today.

We ourselves look back at Elizabethan times and wonder how on earth people ever endured the manifold discomforts and physical inconveniences of that era; and, by the same token, we thank our stars that we live in a more enlightened age. May not our grandchildren, reading of the torments we suffered from aching teeth, wonder how we ever put up with such things.

CONFIDENCE IS NEEDED

IF THE NRA program now being attempted does no more than create an attitude of public confidence in a business revival, it will do a great deal to make such a revival an actual fact.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson reminds us of this fact, by implication, in stating that one of the big needs of the day is a further loosening of commercial credit facilities. There is still a "hold-over timidity" from the depression period, and it has operated to keep credit more constricted than should be the case.

"I do not believe you can get extension of credit by fiat," he remarks. "You have to establish this basis of faith and confidence first, and that is what we are trying as hard as we know how to do."

LOVE OF EVE

(By NEA Service) BY LUCY WALLING

CHAPTER XIX

Though she would not have admitted it to anyone there were times when Eve Rader worried about her marriage. Was her work at the office making too many demands on her time and interest, she asked herself. Dick did not complain but nevertheless she sensed that something was wrong.

For one thing, there were those evenings he spent away from home. Eve had planned to be generous and tolerant in such matters. She had assured herself that she had the "modern" viewpoint. She and Dick had agreed their marriage was to be a fifty-fifty affair with equal freedom for each of them. Still she always felt a little stab of resentment and uneasiness when Dick announced casually that some engagement would keep him away from home.

Was he bored with their quiet evenings together—bored with her? Her pique, she had to admit to herself, was two fold—partly because he told her nothing of what occurred at these affairs. His explanation was always some vague reference to business or that he had been at a meeting of an organization to which he belonged.

Eve was dissatisfied but did not know what she could do about it. The night of Freda Carter's party Eve and Arlene went to dinner together and then took a cab to North Hills where Freda lived.

Arlene's eyes brightened when she saw the tiny studio piano. It was an upright model and looked almost like a toy. Its tone was splendid and as soon as her wraps were removed Arlene sat down and ran her fingers over the keys.

"Oh, I didn't know you played!" Freda exclaimed. "Now my party will surely be a success!"

Later Arlene played while the others sang. Her voice was a rich contralto, so sweet that presently when she sounded the first notes of "Lover, Come Back to Me," the others singers gradually dropped out to listen to Arlene. Eve hoped her friend had not chosen the song because George Bliss was there. He had come with Mona Allen.

Someone suggested bridge but it was postponed until later. The apartment house rules forbid music after 11 o'clock and the crowd apparently wanted music as long as possible.

When they sang "Will You Remember" from "Maytime," Sam Holeridge, who was crippled and had been sitting quietly in a corner of the room leaped up and joined in the singing, letting his voice ring out lustily.

"Play it again!" he pleaded when the song was ended.

But before the last notes of the chorus had been reached a second time Sam turned away abruptly. Freda Carter saw that his eyes were misted.

"What's the matter, Sam?" she asked kindly.

"It's that song—and what it brings back to me," he told her huskily. "I was in love with a beautiful girl once but it all turned out wrong. After that I thought I had to drink to bolster up my courage. I've been doing it ever since. Even tonight! I'm always drinking to forget myself and I'm a damned fool. Don't think I don't know it! And here I am blubbering all over your place. Why don't you give me my marching orders?"

"That's all right, Sam," soothed Freda, patting his arm. "And I want you to stay, of course. Tell me—would you rather the crowd stopped singing?"

"No. Ask the girl at the piano to play 'Liebestraum,' will you?"

And Arlene played it for him. Afterward she sang again while the others listened.

It was a little later when everyone was feeling that the evening had turned into a distinct success that Theron Reece arrived, spoiling the party for Eve.

Immediately he took his place at her side. "Does your hubby know you are out tonight?" he smirked.

Eve's glance was frigid. "I'm afraid I don't know what you mean," she answered.

"Come now!" he said triumphantly. "You didn't tell me you were spending your honeymoon alone when we met in New York. Does hubby know you were out with me there?"

"I'm afraid you'll have to excuse me!" Eve said, rising. She could scarcely control herself, yet she did not wish to make a scene. And the apartment was so small she could hardly avoid Reece. She went into the kitchenette.

"May I help you?" she asked Freda who was making preparations for the buffet supper. Eve wished Dick would come. He had promised to call for her and Arlene.

Arlene came out to help soon and immediately Sam Holeridge joined them. "Freda," he wailed, "won't you send this girl back to the piano? She doesn't belong in the kitchen."

When she and Eve were alone again Freda said with a laugh, "Well, Arlene seems to have him handcuffed and bound."

"Who is he?" Eve asked.

"Don't you know Sam? You should. He's a first rate advertising man. Working at Mason's now. Too bad he drinks so much—he has lots of ability."

Later when Eve looked into the living room she saw that one table of bridge had been organized but Arlene and Sam Holeridge were still at the piano. Mona Allen was holding Reece's hand, telling his fortune, and George Bliss stood alone.

Something impish tempted Eve. "Oh, Mr. Bliss!" she called. "Miss Carter would like a man with a good stroke to slice this ham."

Bliss seemed glad to help in the kitchenette. He opened a bottle of olives, sliced the ham and prepared excellent coffee.

"No kitchenette is complete without a handy man," sighed Freda with a twinkle in her eyes. "If you happen to find one who's unattached and not too antique, Eve, be sure to pull an oar for my side."

A moment later she called gaily, "Fall in line for supper! I'm sending you all home early because I've got to be on the job myself tomorrow."

Reece continued his attempts to draw Eve out. He sat beside her and, balancing her plate and coffee cup, she found it inconvenient to move.

Soon the party broke up and the guests paired off to go home. Sam Holeridge asked Arlene to let him escort her but it was true that Sam had been drinking and Arlene was afraid. So she explained that she would have to go home with Eve with whom she had come to the party.

Eve and Arlene waited for Dick who should have arrived long before. Finally Eve telephoned the apartment but there was no answer. Just as she was beginning to grow worried and restless Reece emerged from the kitchenette.

"All set to be chummy," Arlene whispered to Eve as he sat down on the davenport with the girls.

Eve knew she had a hard day before her and that Freda had also. She was anxious to be home and it became increasingly embarrassing to sit waiting for Dick. At last she decided to call a taxi.

"That will be fine," said Reece. "We can all three make knots that way."

Eve was annoyed but with Arlene as a third she did not fear Reece. She asked to be taken home first and this was logical as her home was nearest. However, she did not hear Reece give the instructions to the driver and they

HAVING LOST

Are you content to fail?—to try
And, having tried, and having lost,
Lay down the oar and say, "Not I
Shall cross, though other men have crossed?"
Are you content to leave the stream,
Your vessel sunk, and done your dream?

Well, then I say to you, my friend,
Though much we talk of luck of late,
If any dream can have an end,
That dream deserved no better fate.
They never lost, who never won,
Until the dream they dreamed was done.

But if you never are content
With failure, ever onward press.
However worn, however spent,
Then even failure is success—
If still your purpose has prevailed,
You may have lost, but have not failed.

DAHLBERG HAS NEW TAX PLAN

Former Escanaban Urges Levies on Money to Force Spending

Dr. Arthur Dahlberg, formerly of Escanaba and now a member of the National Recovery Administration staff in Washington, is the subject of a lengthy article, written by John Boettiger, for the Chicago Tribune, commenting upon Dahlberg's new scheme for tax reform and economic recovery.

The Tribune article, which is written in not an altogether too sympathetic vein, reads as follows:

One of the great minds in the NRA brains trust of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson has worked out the solution to all of our economic troubles.

It is really a pity that President Roosevelt has gone to such strenuous lengths to start the country on the way to prosperity when he might have saved so much time and energy by listening to Dr. Arthur Dahlberg, Ph. D., a research fellow of the Social Science Research council, who was drafted from his deep studies and made an assistant to Dr. Alexander Sachs, Ph. D., chief of Gen. Johnson's division of planning and research.

Huey Long will be kicking himself, too, when he hears about all this.

Sees End of Economic Ills

Dr. Dahlberg's discovery spells the doom, he says, of every evil in the American economic system, including recurring depressions, unemployment, poverty, depressions, hoarding, governmental deficits, the burden of taxation, and general misery.

Unlike most germs from the minds of the brain trusters, Dr. Dahlberg's brain child is astoundingly simple. He proposes to force people to spend money. He will make it easier to spend money than to save it.

He doesn't say how people are to get money, except that there will be so much money flying around with everybody spending it foolishly, as he puts it himself, that there will be more than enough, or, as the doctor plans it, just enough for all.

Dr. Dahlberg's means of forcing people to spend money is to tax it. He proposes a tax on bank deposits and a tax on currency. The tax on currency is novel, but simple: Every month a new batch of currency will be issued, and the currency of the preceding month will be worth less at the store or the bank. If you don't spend it, eventually it will be worth nothing at all.

New Color Every Month

Every month the currency will be of a new color, red, blue, yellow, green, and so on, like baseball tickets, so the storekeepers will know by the hue whether the dollar you hand him is worth 98 cents or 89 cents. If the dollar is old and frayed he may have to look up in the book to make sure whether it is a 58 or a 59 cent dollar.

But perhaps it would be more lucid to quote directly from Dr. Dahlberg's report, which has been submitted to Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture and generally accepted now as the head of the Roosevelt brains trust, and which Dr. Dahlberg expects next to propose to Budget Director Lewis Douglas, and finally to the President, who is expected by Dr. Dahlberg, to present the matter to congress.

"Suppose," says the doctor in his report, "That we set up a mechanism for reducing, say, ¼ per cent, ½ per cent, or 1 per cent monthly, the value of all money—both paper currency and bank deposits,—still in the hands of our American people at the end of each month.

Older Currency Discounted

"At the beginning of every month new currency of a different color, and dated with the month and year, is made available at the banks. These bills would be the only paper currency accepted at par during the coming month. The paper currency of the preceding month would now, on the basis of a 1 per cent monthly forfeit, be worth only 99 cents on the dollar when it is exchanged at the bank. Currency two months old would only be worth 98 cents on the dollar, etc."

Dr. Dahlberg doesn't say how the storekeeper would take out a quarter of a cent, on the basis of a ¼ per cent forfeit, but he might issue paper tokens to take care of the minor detail.

"Suppose," continues the doctor, "that John Jones on Jan. 1 has $30 in January currency and $3 in metallic change in his pocket; that he also has a deposit of $1,000 in his bank. Then, under our scheme, if John Jones has not spent his $30 worth of currency by the first of February, he knows that the bank will give him only $29.70 worth of February money for his January currency. Retailers, too, will discount its worth. January money may be red and February may be blue so that retailers will readily notice the age and issue of the paper."

Bank Balances Taxed

On the matter of John Jones' $1,000 in the bank, the Dahlberg report says:

"The government needs simply to instruct the banks to deduct, say 1 per cent from the balances of all its depositors at the end of every month, when the monthly statements are made up. This 1 per cent, the banks could be directed to credit to the account of the United States government.

"These sums would, of course, provide a nice revenue. Bank deposits in 1929 were about 55 billion; in 1932, about 43 billion. A drastic monthly tax of 1 per cent on the sums would net the government between five and six billion dollars annually. Such revenue would run the government."

This revenue, says the doctor in another section of the report, "would be a veritable gift from the heaven; pardon me—from the hoarders."

Points to Heavy Discount

Returning to John Jones' $1,000 in the bank, Dr. Dahlberg points out that it would be worth only $990 to him, "if, for one month, he delays spending it."

"The penalty for one year for not spending his $1,000," the report states, "turns out to be $112.85. Can you conceive of Jones, or anyone else not spending under such conditions? Everyone would practically be forced to buy goods, services or plant, as soon as he received his money income.

"And therein lies the virtue of this plan. It would obtain the same result as shortening the hours of labor in one respect that it would facilitate spending. In the one case huge incomes would be forced into action and perhaps into being foolishly used by the rich.

"In the other, income would be diverted to those who would all too willingly spend, it rationally without any forcing. In both cases, income would be quickly spent in hiring labor; it could not feasibly be left in the form of an unexercised command over labor."

Urges "Increasing Foolishness"

Reasoning that the increase substitution of machines for man power has destroyed purchasing power, Dr. Dahlberg writes that restoration of this purchasing power, under the present system, is dependent on an "increasing foolishness in spending among our rich," and he adds:

"Well, they are not so foolish as our situation demands, and our system crumbles."

Assailing the economists who are trying, as the doctor says, "to try to kid the rich into believing that the corner has been turned, and that now is the time to spend and invest," Dr. Dahlberg writes:

"No, we must smoke out purchasing power, not coax it out. We must force people — not coax people—to spend. Not only now, but in the past as well, have we given too great a legal privilege to the holders of money."

Dahlberg Anticipates Protests

Anticipating protests that people will not be able to save for a rainy day, Dr. Dahlberg says, yes, they could. He would advise John Jones to invest his $1,000 in real estate. By selling the real estate, he could cash in at any time. Nothing is said about the millionaires buying up all the real estate.

At one point in the report, which Dr. Dahlberg intends later to publish for general consumption, he warns the readers as follows:

"The layman is advised to skip the slightly theoretical material that follows and to resume his reading on page 10."

But, by risking a perusal, the layman learns to what degree the doctor wants to tax money.

"Just how strong an annual forfeit rate would be needed, whether 1 per cent or 12 per cent, I do not know," he writes. "My personal guess would be that a rate of ½ per cent per month, about 6 per cent per year, would do nicely as an opener. It would depend upon the hands into which the national income were diverted. The very rich might need a powerful coercive measure to force them to spend, the poor, I believe, would need none at all."

In the same slightly theoretical passage Dr. Dahlberg observes:

"With money on fire, burning up in monthly forfeits, people would scramble and bid against one another for goods. It is safe to guess that on the exchanges the value of commodities, stocks, and bonds would shoot heavenward.

"Prices would shoot upward but, unlike the manner in which they would probably keep going under inflation, they would stabilize at a certain level, depending upon the severity of the monthly tax or forfeit."

Returning to the lowlier realms of lay understanding again, Dr. Dahlberg proposed that the determination of the forfeit rate be made a duty of the President of the United States.

"It could be his duty," the doctor said, "to keep the rate at that intensity which keeps unemployment at zero. Even a dumb public could check his efficacy in doing this."

Sees Buck Passing End

Proposing that congress give the President authority to take this step, Dr. Dahlberg notes that "political buck passing would then be impossible, and the public would know with the greatest exactitude in whom the responsibility was located."

If any one is thinking that he could beat the Dahlberg plan by investing in foreign money, or in metallic coins, the doctor has him there, because he says that "the Englishman would not want to buy dollars subject to taxation unless he received more of them for his pounds." Anticipating objections that foreign trade would be in a mess, Dr. Dahlberg is calm in saying that the world powers will simply have to adopt a similar forfeit rate and force their rich also to spend foolishly to employ the poor of the world.

Pointing out that it is already a felony to own more than $100 worth of gold, Dr. Dahlberg would make it another felony to hoard more than $50 worth of silver, and so nobody could beat the currency forfeit that way.

Perronville Will Hold Picnic Next Labor Day Monday

The Polish Alma Mater society will celebrate the first anniversary of its organization at Perronville Labor Day, Sept. 4, with a picnic, to which the public is invited. The program will be presented at the Perronville market lot during the afternoon and evening.

Athletics, dancing, lunch and refreshments will make up the program. A committee is now making plans, determined to make the event one of the most successful of its kind ever held in Perronville.

GREEN TO RUN FOR SENATOR?

Report Former Governor Anxious to Defeat Vandenberg

"Former Governor Fred W. Green's present ambition," according to a story by Carl Muller, in a recent issue of the Detroit Times, "is to be helpful in knocking off Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Grand Rapids, when Vandenberg comes up for re-election next year.

"Green's description of Vandenberg is that 'he is the only man I know who can strut sitting Fred W. Green down.' The reason for his political animosity toward Vandenberg has never been explained.

"It was Green himself who appointed Vandenberg United States senator early in 1928. Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris had died. Green had made up his mind to appoint Joseph (Uncle Joe) Fordney of Saginaw. A new senator had to be elected in the fall of 1928. Green felt it would be a good opportunity to permit 'Uncle Joe' to round out his public career. He also figured that Fordney would not be a candidate in the fall. Vandenberg already was a candidate and so were several others. Green felt that to appoint Vandenberg would give him an undue advantage over the others in the campaign only six months ahead.

"Suddenly Green announced he was appointing Vandenberg. Why he changed his mind over night has never been explained. But a short time later, at Uncle Joe's funeral, Green, with tears in his eyes, publicly apologized for ever having appointed Vandenberg, who in the meantime had been formally elected in the 1928 Hoover landslide.

"Green, according to friends, would give his right eye to see Vandenberg beaten. The former governor might run himself. He would like to see Vandenberg 'knocked off' in the primaries. If that failed, Green might quietly back the Democratic nominee.

"Friends of Vandenberg report he does not fear any Republican opposition, but is hoping and hoping and hoping nothing brings Frank Murphy back from the Philippines and projects him into the senatorial race."

Dr. Kitchen Has Another Flying Thrill

Dr. C. J. B. Kitchen probably has more thrills with his airplane than any other Escanaba aviator.

Last Saturday he hopped off from the U. P. Airways airport, with the Rotary Roundup at Blaney Park as his destination. As he was flying over Bay de Noc, the motor of his plane stalled, but he succeeded in gliding away from the water, and made a forced landing on a farm in Stonington. He was uninjured.

Dr. Kitchen left his plane there and hiked six miles to Highway US-2, where he caught a ride from Fred Johnson, Iron Mountain, upper peninsula representative of the Ford Motor company, who also was going to the Rotary outing at Blaney. Arriving at Blaney, the dentist-aviator called Ellsworth Ranguette of Nahma, and asked him to put the machine in shape and fly it back to Escanaba.

Last winter, Dr. Kitchen had another unusual experience with his plane. He had made a landing on the ice-covered Bay de Noc. When he started his motor to take off again, the plane started moving before he could clamber into the cockpit. He caught a hold on the tail of the plane, and held fast to it while it skimmed over the ice for a quarter of an hour. Finally, the plane nosed down, overturned and came to a stop after traveling a considerable distance in a circling and zig-zagging fashion over the ice. He was slightly bruised in that accident.

Christmas Tree Law Is Changed

Act No. 124 of the Public Acts of 1933, known as the Perry Act, requires that persons cutting, removing or transporting within this state Christmas trees, evergreen boughs or other wild trees, shrubs or vines, shall obtain the written consent of the owner of the land from which the plants or plant parts are taken. Written consent shall contain the legal description of the land, as well as the name of the legal owner thereof, and failure to exhibit such written consent to enforcement officers shall be prima facie evidence that no such consent was obtained. ● ABOVE—A. M. WILKINS, air-mail pilot for Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., has flown the night air mail over 150,000 miles. It takes healthy nerves to hang up a record like that!

● RIGHT—AT THE END of his night run A. M. Wilkins joins a fellow pilot, W. Niedernhofer, at Newark Airport, the Eastern Terminal of TWA, for a chat and a smoke. "Camels never ruffle or jangle my nerves," Wilkins says.

● EVER NOTICE HOW airplane passengers smoke at each refueling stop? Camels never get on your nerves, no matter how much you smoke, and there's more real enjoyment in their costlier tobaccos.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

A. M. WILKINS, air-mail ace, says: "It's a steady grind, all right, being a night hawk on the air mail. A man has to have healthy nerves to live up to our tradition that the mail must go through! That's why I smoke Camels. And I smoke plenty! Camels never ruffle or jangle my nerves, and I like their mild, rich flavor."

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Stocks changed narrowly today as the dollar made a broad recovery and wheat skidded at Chicago.

Not long ago, so sharp a slump in foreign exchanges—indicating a revision of Europe's views toward inflation in this country—would no doubt have had a reflection in our share market, but traders today gave it little, if any, attention. Prices were about steady virtually all day; there were mild reactions at both the opening and the closing, the latter being sufficient to bring a small net loss in the averages. Sales totaled 2,124,219 shares.

Sterling tumbled more than twelve cents during trading hours on the stock exchange and French francs also weakened. There had been a sag in these rates on Saturday when trading was nominal, but this morning the decline—conversely, the rise of the dollar—became pronounced.

Business seeming approaches the end of summer with what market circles would call a good undertone. Credit apparently is to be kept as easy as possible and federal reserve resources will be utilized when, as and if needed. Meanwhile, the Blue Eagle will have an opportunity to show its mettle.

Wheat's losses of more than a cent a bushel were attributed in large measure to the weakness of sterling.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Aug. 28—Grains moved slowly backward today, held back by an indifferent demand and weakness of the British pound sterling.

Scattered selling was noted in the pits at the start of trading and with demand at a low ebb, prices declined around two cents a bushel in wheat before a rally set in. Liverpool wheat prices showed relatively little change, in British money, but were 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 cents lower in terms of dollars, due to a sharp drop in exchange rates. Corn was almost lifeless, following wheat but slightly and lacking any motive power on its own hook.

Wheat closed weak and 1 1-8 to 1 3-4 cents below Saturday's finish, corn also weak and 3-8 to 3-4 down, oats 3-8 to 3-4 off, and provisions 8 to 28 cents lower.

Corn was sluggish with some selling of the yellow cereal prompted by scattered rains over the belt. Cash interests continued to buy September contracts and sell the deferred deliveries. A substantial reduction in the visible supply of corn was ignored.

Oats, rye and barley were affected by the same factors as wheat and corn and sold lower.

Provisions eased with grains, stocks and hogs.

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—The curb market milled about narrowly in dull trading today to close somewhat irregular. Prices slid off a trifle in the forenoon but strengthened around midday from which point stocks backed and filled listlessly.

Mining issues displayed a firm tone in the afternoon, Newmont, New Jersey Zinc and Lake Shore Mines gaining a point or so. Pan American Airways was an outstanding firm spot, advancing 4½ points on good demand, following announcement of an extensive expansion program designed to increase the company's business with the South American republics.

Utilities were narrow throughout, Electric Bond and Share and American Gas & Electric finishing virtually unchanged. Commonwealth Edison, which is subject to a thin market, rose 4 points in normal dealings. Alcohol issues closed a shade lower while in the petroleum group small fractional gains predominated.

Transfers approximated 306,000 shares compared with 449,000 for last Friday.

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Weakness of some foreign obligations, probably as a result of sharp reactions in exchange rates, was an unsettling factor in the bond market today and prices generally were highly irregular.

Sales, while somewhat larger than last Friday, totaled only $9,825,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate issues eased one-tenth of a point to 80.4.

French 7½s lost 4 points and British 5¼s were turned over in sizeable volume for a decline of 1¼ points. Bonds of Poland, Germany, Dutch East Indies, Sweden, Argentina and Australia were off 1 to around 3 points.

Domestic industrial loans, as a whole made the best showing. Studebaker 6s were run up 3½ points, and gainers of 1 or more included American Metal 5½s, Certain-teed 5½s, Chile Copper 5s and Mead Corp. 6s.

United States government securities were quiet but moderately higher. There has been little selling pressure on this list of late owing, apparently, to the federal reserve system's expanded open market buying.

For the LOVE OF EVE

arrived at Arlene's home first. Eve had paid no attention to the direction in which they traveled. Now she was too surprised to use her wits and with a goodnight to Arlene she resigned herself to the situation. Alone again in the taxi with Reece whom she detested, Eve was provokingly silent.

"You don't like me very well, do you, Eve?" he asked.

"Mrs. Rader, if you please," she corrected him.

Reece removed his hat and ran his fingers through his black, curly hair. He was good looking, Eve thought, in rather a movie hero manner. He laughed, a low, throaty laugh. "Can't make me mad," he assured her.

To Eve's intense relief, however, he did not become cheapiy familiar. His attempts at conversation met with silence from her and she sprang from the cab as soon as it stopped before her home. Reece followed her. Whether or not this was for her protection she did not know, but he saw her safely inside the hall. Dick opened the door and nodded curtly to Reece who turned and went his way.

"I waited and waited for you!" Eve said accusingly.

"I'm sorry I was late," Dick said, "but I couldn't help it. When I got to Freda's you had just gone. But I've been waiting a long while since I got home."

There was no use putting up a defense, Eve thought. She was tired and an argument would lead nowhere. Let Dick think what he might about her coming home with Theron Reece!

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"If you would ever get interested in my stamp collection you wouldn't want to go to dances and parties."

Doings In New York

New York (AP)—Legitimate actors, the vaudeville people, and even the circus folk are all working on codes for adoption by their branches of the entertainment industry. And now even the Coney Island freaks are getting together after hours and going into minimum-wage and 40-hour-week problems.

It turns out that most of the freaks do from 12 to 14 hours a day, seven days a week, averaging only $15 to $20 a week, depending on the sales of their postcards.

Their idea is that there are plenty of fat, tattooed and bearded ladies, and an abundance of rubber-necked, armless - wonder and sword-swallowing men to run double shifts. Eko and Iko, the flaxen-haired men from Mars, could take turns posing on the platform. (And so, for that matter, could the individual members of a pair of so-called Siamese twins).

There are a few recalcitrants, though, who are holding up an agreement. Susie, the Elephant-skinned Girl, says she's absolutely the only one of her kind. And there's a buxom snake-charmer who has flatly turned down the idea of anybody spelling her with the serpents. Declares she won't let her darlings work a minute longer than she has to herself.

One freak who isn't worrying about the NRA code, or anything else right now, is Lyda Graf, the midget who was plopped into the lap of J. P. Morgan during the hearing at Washington. Lyda's a show by herself, charging 25 cents to hear her tell how it all happened.

New York's Unique Houses

Geroge Gershwin has done a Rhapsody in Gray with his new apartment. It's gray paneled, gray carpeted, gray curtained. Two of the walls are nothing but windows, and there are his two pianos and a lot of modern art about. Gershwin does some painting himself. Hasn't hung any of them, though, except a portrait of his grandfather, long dead.

Speaking of residences, the socialite Oliver P. Jennings es have a secret passageway and a "chamber of horrors" in their summer home. The chamber is a room done in minute detail with the atrocities of the Gay Nineties, complete from what-not and plush, album to wax flowers under glass. The passageway was just a builder's whim, now used only by the servants . . .

Roland Harriman's house, perched atop a steep hill at Arden, N. Y., has a funicular railway running up to it. The mansion was built by Edward Henry Harriman, the railroad magnate, who even had a top train running around the dining room table.

Providence Boy Makes Good

Dwight Fiske, a Providence, R. I., boy who made good in several different ways, is Hollywood-bound to write the dialogue for the next Mae West picture. Not long ago he was enroute to a career as a concert pianist when, in Paris, Marie Dressler asked him to play at one of her parties. Sitting there drumming idly and waiting for guests to arrive, he played some pieces he had written, with words about prominent people. Miss Dressler made him repeat them for the other folks. So he became a society pianologue entertainer in snooty night clubs, and last season at the Mayfair Yacht Club his stuff amused enough people, and shocked enough people, so that business was very good indeed . . . Recently he did a book, called "Without Music," full of blank verse fantasies aimed at assorted celebrities. For instance, there was the one about "America's greatest autumn flower, the Astor, waving slightly on her tired stem . . . ." Also (from the days of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, no doubt) "the Biggest Fish in the world, ready to annihilate every little nouveau minnow . . . ."

REPEAL BATTLE CREATES DRAMA

Ohio Anti-Saloon Plans To Go on Road With "Wet Parade"

Here is Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon league, as he rehearses the part of a juror in a play that forms part of the campaign against a repeal vote in Ohio.

Westerville, O. (AP)—The Ohio Anti-Saloon league has determined to use the drama for the punch in its campaign to keep Ohio in the prohibition column when the state votes on repeal of the eighteenth amendment November 7.

"Wet Parade" is the title of the play that has been written for presentation in a dozen or more Ohio cities this fall.

At the "world premiere" of the production at Westerville, one of the principal actors was Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, 77-year-old founder of the Anti-Saloon league, who drew upon his experience as an amateur theatrical player during his collegiate days in Iowa.

In his role as a juror, the doctor is called upon to rise dramatically from his place in the jury box during a trial scene and ask a number of question about law enforcement. It is one of the important scenes with which the league hops to arouse anti-repeal sentiment in the state.

The doctor, however, will not be a member of the cast when the show "goes on the road" for a tour of Ohio cities.

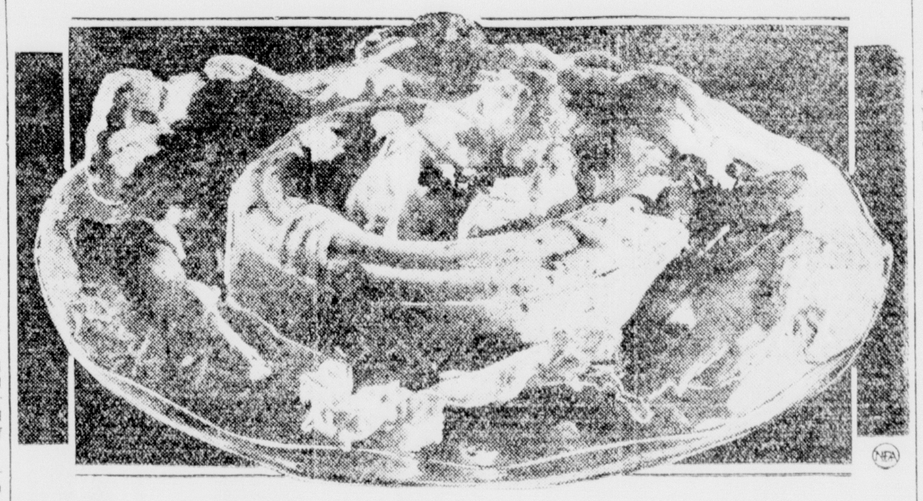
Creamy Pimento Ring



Perfect for those informal Sunday night suppers is this creamy pimento ring, garnished with lettuce and Watercress.

You don't have to have a pretentious dining room or a vast amount of space to entertain this fall in the Sunday night supper way.

The hostess who has a minimum of space in her apartment can solve entertaining problems with simple little buffet suppers.

Don't plan elaborate menus. There should be only one main dish. While the weather is still warm, let it be some sort of a jellied salad. When it's cooler, have one hot dish.

If your pellied salad is a wholesome, filling one, about all you will need in addition to it are sandwiches, varied relishes, dessert and coffee.

A creamy pimento ring for a main dish is sure to gain you a reputation as a hostess who knows just what to do for her friends. It is easy to prepare and can be made hours before the guests arrive, thereby avoiding last-minute confusion.

Here are the things you will need to make creamy pimento ring:

One package of lemon flavored gelatin, one and one-half cups of warm water, one-half tablespoon of vinegar, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half cupful milk, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one teaspoon minced onion, one-half cup of mayonnaise, one-half cup of grated American cheese, one-third cup of pimento—finely chopped. Dissolve the gelatin in warm water. Add vinegar and salt. Set in the ice box to chill.

Add milk, paprika and onion to mayonnaise and beat with rotary egg beater. When the gelatin is slightly thickened, beat in the mayonnaise mixture. Then fold in the grated cheese and pimento. Turn into ring mold and place again in the ice box to chill until firm.

When you are ready to serve, dip the bottom of the mold in warm water for a few seconds to loosen the "ring" and then turn, upside down, on a large platter which has been covered with lettuce or watercress.

Put a few pieces of lettuce in the center of the mold and place a few tablespoonsful of mayonnaise on them.

This recipe serves six. It makes a very attractive dish on a buffet supper table and, in addition, is hearty and filling.

Hollywood Gossip

Hollywood—The day Hal B. Wallis, Jr., was born, his mother, Louise Fazenda, received a present—a contract to star in three two-reel comedies.

So when young Hal reached the ripe old age of three months, his mother went back to work after being away from the screen for a year.

"I always expected I'd be an old-fashioned mother," says Louise, "who wouldn't leave her child in anyone else's care until he had practically grown up. But I seem to be quite modern as the experts say today's mother should be."

Miss Fazenda has several good reasons for returning so soon to her profession of making people laugh. First of all, she likes the work. Then she feels indebted to the producer who sent her and Hal the "birthday" present. Hence she agreed to make the pictures within as short a time as possible. And third, of course, is the money.

'Medicine, Not Movies'

In talking about her son, Louise is almost voluble. He will, she says, become a doctor—if she has anything to say about it.

"Everyone asks me if I'm going to have Brent—we call him Brent because two Hals in one house cause confusion—in the movies," Louise says. "But I'm not. Maybe I'm wrong in picking his profession, but I'm going to try to influence him in his choice.

"Wouldn't 'Dr. Brent Wallis' sound swanky? Why, with a name like that he'd have such a head start that he could charge $1,000 for just removing adenoids!"

Miss Fazenda won't spend much time away from her son, she finally admitted. She says she hopes to work approximately a week in every month, making comedies and features. The rest of the time will be spent goo-ing at the future Dr. Brent Wallis.

Sound-Checker

The man who "okeys the sound" in a movie doesn't have to know the language he hears coming over the microphone before it is recorded. When Chevalier sings or plays a scene in French, he might just as well be talking Greek, so far as the sound men are concerned. They check the dialog only for defects in tone, pitch and quality.

Upper Peninsula Women Are Doing Much Canning

If cooperation of the women folks in providing nutritious and well selected foods for their families for the coming winter was recognized by the government with an N. R. A. sign, there would be many homes in the upper peninsula eligible to display a blue eagle for the amount of canning they have done. The home economics extention of Michigan State college has helped carry the message into more than fifty communities in nine counties with an attendance of over 1800 through demonstrations given by members of the extension staff.

Miss Harris

"Our aim in these demonstrations," Says Margaret Harris, assistant home demonstration leader, "has been to bring to the housewife the most efficient and safe method of preserving foods that cannot be kept by storage during the winter months. From the standpoint of economy and of health, there can be no better way to meet the present day needs than to can the surplus fruits and vegetables."

It is not too late now to can late vegetables as corn, tomatoes and late maturing beans, as well as fruits which will be good for some weeks. A bulletin which includes a suggestive canning budget as well as detailed directions for hot pack canning of vegetables is available to anyone wishing one. There are other ways to preserve food for winter by the making of sauer kraut, drying of corn, drying and sulphured apples. Dried apples may be done according to the following directions:

Peel apples and cut into thin slices one-fourth inch or less. Cut at right angle to core. Drop slices in a brine of one level tablespoon salt to one gallon of water to prevent discoloring. Drain well, place on trays or pans in single layer. Dry in the sun or in a slow oven with the door open, starting at 110 degrees F. and finishing at 170 degrees. Dry until soft and elastic enough not to break when bent (usually about 10 hours). Store for one week where apples may be stirred daily. When used, soak in warm water until swollen to original size. Cook as fresh apples.

Every family should also have plenty of tomatoes to use during the winter months. Tomatoes properly canned are as potent as far as vitamins and minerals are concerned, as are the fresh ones. They are the one vegetable which may be used to replace fruit in the diet, and whether fresh or canned, eaten as soup or as stewed tomatoes, are valuable sources of vitamin C. Every housekeeper would do well to include three to four servings per week for the family during the entire year.

Woman Pilot Is Secretary

Oklahoma City (AP)—This city's only woman transport airplane pilot has been named by O. M. Mosier, city manager, as secretary of the municipal air terminal here. She is Mrs. Dorothy Pressler.

Prior to her appointment she served two years as airport hostess without compensation and was office manager for an airplane agency.

There is music at all home games of the St. Louis National league club, furnished by the Cardinal boys' band.

Short Fur Wrap Proves Popular Winter Fashion

Paris (AP)—Furs are among the first notes in the winter book of styles.

Besides the lavishly-furred coats shown by leading designers, scores of short fur wraps, jackets, muffs and waistcoats are displayed. Some of the short fur wraps are designed to wear only with a frock, others can be slipped on over a coat, but all are fashioned with an eye to the elegance Paris has decreed for 1934.

Many Kinds of Pelts

There is a wider variety of pelts than has been shown in many years. Foxes of every variety—silver, blue, stone, brown and dyed navy blue—share honors with lynx, astrakhan, beaver, broadtail, galyak, mink, sable, Seal, pony, Indian lamb, leopard, panther and ermine.

Silver fox capes, fashioned in the height of luxurious elegance, are foremost in the short wrap mode. They are designed of four or five pelts, two over the shoulders and two or three around the arms, and are ready to be worn from October to April.

Waist-length jackets, sometimes with long and sometimes with elbow-length sleeves, designed of flat pelts such as astrakhan, galyak or seal, are another noteworthy item.

Waistcoats Stylish

Little fur waistcoats of black seal, gray galyak or brown Indian lamb give a fashionable fillip to many woolen ensembles.

Muffs are everywhere. This year's design is a larger and more expensive version than last year's little melon model, however. It varies from a flat kangaroo pouch to a big pillow design and is made of fluffy fox pelts as well as broadtail, galyak, astrakhan or seal.

Mr. Sly was called on to make a brief address and responded in a few well chosen words, addressing his remarks to the pioneer and to their descendents. There were games and sports and old time dancing and fiddling. The event was an enjoyable one.

Camp Boxing Bouts Are Colorful Event

A scene of excitement and color was staged at Camp Newberry, 10½ miles north of this village on the Deer Park road, Sunday night when a boxing match between Newberry, Seney and Superior C. C. C. men took place. The "square circle" was located on a low place about which several hundred citizens and members of the forest camps disposed themselves in various positions of comfort. The Newberry band led by Jack Baetz was on hand with music between the bouts. Pa and ma and all the kids were there. The best girls of many of the boys were also on hand to cheer where it would do the most good. The tan tents stood above in rows, the sparce growth of an old logging site stood up bravely against the evening sky, army officers in spic uniforms moved about doing the honors as hosts and in and about the whole picture were the slender forest soldiers, tanned, laughing, with much tossing of jokes and jibes.

The Manly Art

It is beyond the powers of this writer to report a prize fight. With the kind help of First Lieut. J. E. Canary and acting First Sergt. Ernest Ecklestafer it was discovered that Camp Newberry No. 1688 won two decisions, the other bouts ending in draws. The first bout was between Danis of 88 and Notta of 61, resulting in a draw. Tolsdorf for Newberry and Green for the visitors fought three lively rounds, the judges giving Tolsdorf, an Alpena lad, the decision. Manley of 88 and Smith of 61, and Fulk of 68 and Thornton of 61 also ended in draws. By this time dusk was coming on so rapidly that the timekeepers were making the rounds shorter.

Championship Decided

Before the last of the bouts was fought the championship for the Newberry and Superior camps was decided. Fink of 88 and McCall of 86. This bout drew the greatest excitement of the evening. Fink appeared to have the best of it from the beginning and had the advantage of height and arm length. The first round appeared all Fink's. McCall bleeding a little from a blow beneath the eye and acting a little groggy from it. Fink took it easy during the second round, McCall appearing to be stalling for time and fighting a defensive game. The third was something of a whirlwind with McCall standing up to it and taking a good deal from the more expert man. The decision, however, was satisfactory with the crowd.

The judges were Quinlan, Bowers and Olson; timekeepers, Cpl. White and Rexford Manier. Ernest Ecklesdofer was referee.

The bouts started a little late because the Seney boys had been delayed because of a fire south of Seney.

CAR ACCIDENT

Two cars were badly damaged although no one was seriously injured in an accident near Rexton about 11 a. m. Sunday. William F. Neason of Traverse City believes that a locked steering wheel caused his trouble as he was unable to turn back to his side of the highway on a long curve and crashed into a car driven by L. S. Peterson of Milwaukee. The camp doctor at the Rexton C. C. C. camp gave first aid to the bruised and shaken group. State police investigated.

NEWBERRY BRIEFS

Two small fires called out the conservation officers on Sunday. One was on the state forest where Supt. Bernard McTiver and 25 boys from the Superior camp held the blaze in a bad jackpine slash to about two acres. South of Seney 25 men from the Seney forest camp fought a hot blaze that ran over 80 acres before it could be held. Rain fell in the northern part of Luce county Monday morning.

Mark Schaff, state manager of the forest reserves, arrived in Newberry Monday to visit the Superior camp and Supt. McTiver.

John Paull, Jr., is confined to his home with a mild case of scarlet fever. Mr. Paull, conservator for the Newberry State Bank, is rooming at the home of Marshall Smith for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Smith and daughter, Helen Marie, left on Sunday for Pontiac and Detroit. At the latter city Miss Smith will enter nurse's training at St. Joseph Mercy hospital on September 1.

Oscar Swanson has returned from a fishing trip in the Blind River district in Ontario.

A party consisting of the Misses Kathlyn and Evelyn Gormely, Eileen McCauley of the Sault and Mrs. C. C. Gormely of Detroit spent last week at the Chicago fair. Evelyn remained in Detroit for a visit, Kathleen arriving home Saturday night.

The Business and Profesional Woman's club will have a 6 o'clock dinner on Tuesday at Hiawatha club.

FAMILY PARTY

Ending a week of family reunion Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kunert were hosts to a dinner party at Forest Inn on Sunday. Covers were laid for twelve. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horn of Austin, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Low Ward of Guilderland, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of Traverse City, Mrs. T. L. Stewart of Boyne Falls, Fred Bitters of Brooklyn, N. Y., Anna and Kathryn Kunert and Marjorie Morrill.

Pension Fund Depleted

Menominee—Menominee county owes $8,384.22 due to women on its mothers' pension roll, according to a report by Probate Judge John W. Stiles read to the Menominee county board of supervisors here today by Albert Kipfer, Stephenson township supervisor and chairman of the board's mothers' pension committee.

Judge Stiles reported that $8,384.22 was "owing and due" to the mothers' pension recipients as result of non-payment of the mothers' pensions from April 3 to August 28 because of the depleted condition of the county's general fund, from which the pensions are paid.

Bridge Relocation Proposed

St. Ignace—Relocation of the St. Ignace state ferry dock to shorten the route across the Straits of Mackinac is being revived here following the recent agitation for a Straits bridge.

The announcement that a gravel surfaced road along the shore of Lake Michigan from St. Ignace to the High Rollway near U.S-2, a distance of 2.20 miles, is being considered by the state as a federal relief project, and Governor Comstock's recent request for $200,000 under the public works program to relocate a state ferry dock, are believed at St. Ignace to point to new efforts in having the Upper Peninsula terminal moved from its present location at East Moran May to Pointe LaBarbe.

PAPERS RESTORED

Marquette—A long and honorable record on the Great Lakes has been kept clear by the restoration of his master's papers to Captain George Johnston, of Traverse City, according to word received here yesterday.

Captain Johnson is a veteran lake captain and was in command of the George M. Cox which stranded on the Rock of Ages Reef, Lake Superior, May 27. In the investigation which followed the accident his papers were revoked.

After a few weeks in which the matter has been reconsidered Captain Johnson has received official notice that his papers will be returned and he will be given back all his rights and privileges as a master.

NURSERY WORK IS COMMENCED

Preparation of Ground Begins Yesterday; to Plant in October

Preparation of ground as a step toward the planting of between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 pine seedlings this fall, was commenced yesterday in the 90-acre plot of the new federal nursery here yesterday, according to George Ferrari, of Munising forest ranger in charge of the Hiawatha national forest, who was here supervising the introduction of the work. Herbert Miotke, of Milwaukee, construction foreman in the Hiawatha national forest, will handle the ground preparation work and construction of buildings.

Blister rust control work in the nursery was commenced last Thursday by two crews of young men from the Civilian Conservation Corps from the Pines encampment. Henry Auvonen, a member of the Hiawatha national forest organization, is the technical foreman in charge of work.

Eradication of both wild and cultivated currants and gooseberries, necessary factors in the spread of blister rust, is being consummated both within the nursery and for a distance of 1500 feet from its boundaries. Tests have shown that blister rust is unable to spread for more than a distance of 900 feet from currant and gooseberry bushes, but every precaution is being taken to make the nursery absolutely free from this dreaded disease, Mr. Ferrari stated.

A general eradication of currants and gooseberries has been done in this city under the direction of William Maynor. Bushes of this nature were found to be heavily infected with blister rust. Continuation of blister rust control work will be carried on throughout the county.

The ground work consists of cutting out brush and trees, blasting stumps, and general clearing in preparation for the sowing this fall. Boundary lines are also being laid. It is expected that the ground work will be completed by October 15 when planting will commence. Norway pine, white pine, and white spruce will be the varieties of seedlings raised in the local nursery.

Mr. Ferrari, who is in charge of the forestry work in the three CCC camps in the Hiawatha national forest, Kentucky, Steuben, and McComb lake, stated that exceptionally fine progress had been made by the civilian forestry workers in building roads, fire lines, tourist camps, grubbing, thinning and "scalping" ground in preparation for the planting of seedlings.

The work of planting approximately 5,000 acres of seedlings, numbering 4,500,000, will commence in the Hiawatha forest two weeks hence he said. Ground is "scalped" (removal of the sods) in places eighteen inches square, in rows six feet apart, and at intervals of eight feet, where the seedlings will be plented.

The supply of seedlings, Mr. Ferrari stated, will come from the federal nursery at Rhinelander, Wis., and will also be purchased from private concerns.

U. P. Bakers Hold Meet At Ishpeming

The second meeting of the newly organized Upper Peninsula Bakers' association took place on Sunday at the Mather Inn at Ishpeming when 75 representatives of the trade from the entire upper peninsula convened for the purpose of establishing the Master Bakers' code under the National Recovery Act. No definite code was decided upon, although definite progress toward the promulgation of the instrument was made at the meeting. William Barker, secretary of the organization, and Louis Mueller, member of the board of directors, were in attendance.

B. J. Regan, president of the Masters State Bakers' association and T. F. Bulkma, secretary of the state association, will leave for Washington soon where they will seek to effect the establishment of a code with the aid of federal government officials administering the act.

Further perfection of the upper peninsula association was made at the meeting Sunday when thirty members affiliated. Officers and directors will again convene on Sunday, September 10, when they will meet at Sault Ste. Marie.

WORKERS GET INCREASE

Ishpeming—Between 450 and 500 employes at the H. W. Gossard company's factory in Ishpeming will be given increases in pay Monday when the factory begins operating under the NRA code of the Corset and Brassiere Manufacturers association, it was announced yesterday by C. H. Tripp, manager.

The company's decision to cooperate in all respects with the principles of the national industrial recovery act means that hundreds of families in Ishpeming, Negaunee and vicinity will be benefitted and their incomes virtually doubled, inasmuch as the payroll at the factory will be increased about twice the size of what it has been in recent months.

FARLEY STARTS BOOM ALREADY

Predicts Roosevelt to Win in 1936 by Larger Majority

Washington—Jim Farley is at it again.

Speaking at a dinner in his honor in New Jersey, arranged by a local democratic committee, the postmaster general predicted in Aug., 1933, that Franklin Roosevelt would be re-elected to the presidency in 1936 "by even a greater majority than in 1932."

Jas. A. Farley

That outdoes Farley's 1932 record as a long-distance political horoscope reader. His most famous prediction was that Mr. Roosevelt would be nominated at Chicago on the first ballot. He said that so often that the press began to know him as "First Ballot Farley."

* * *

It didn't work out. Mr. Roosevelt was nominated on the fourth, not the first ballot. The personnel of the Roosevelt administration would have been somewhat different otherwise. If the late Mayor Cermak of Chicago, for instance, and his Indiana allies had beaten McAdoo and Garner to it in boarding the Roosevelt bandwagon, Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet would certainly have reflected that.

A Different Matter

If Mr. Farley were talking about the nomination in 1936 instead of the election, no political observer would be apt to challenge him now. Certainly success of his recovery program would mean Mr. Roosevelt's renomination without serious opposition. If it should fail, he probably would be renominated for different reasons. The chances of election of a democratic President would seem to be dubious and seekers for the nomination in opposition to Mr. Roosevelt few and far between.

Back to any degree of economic normalcy may mean back also to some degree of political normalcy. And this country has been normally republican in national politics for a great many years.

Political Welding

Mr. Roosevelt knows that. The clear purpose at which he began driving from the hour of his acceptance speech at Chicago was to change that condition.

He succeeded in gathering almost all restive elements of the republican party by his strategy of shooting at republican leadership, Hoover leadership, but never at the republican party. His cabinet makeup and a surprisingly large number of his subsequent patronage appointments indicate a definite hope of welding what amounts to a new middle-of-the-road liberal party out of his 1932 support.

Yet that means a seemingly inescapable break with extreme right-wing democrats as well as a break, already somewhat foreshadowed, with left wing democrats and republicans.

Short of the acid test of the congressional elections next year, nobody's guess as to how it is going to turn out politically is worth very much, not even that of Soothsayer Farley.

Hail losses paid by the Montana board of hail insurance were heavier in 1932 than in any other year since 1917.

ROTARY CLUBS ENJOY OUTING

97 Attend Gala Annual Event Saturday at Blaney Park

Ninety-seven Rotarians of upper Michigan, including delegations from ten clubs, thoroughly enjoyed a day filled with pleasure and good fellowship at the annual round-up held Saturday at Blaney Park. The festivities began early in the afternoon with a sports program of varied events in which various groups enjoyed golf, shuffle board, diamond ball, a trip to Paul Bunyan's camp, etc. Bear Creek Inn and Celibeth Tavern housed the guests for the 6:30 o'clock banquet which was followed by a fine evening program featured by the addresses of Dr. Webster H. Pearce, president of Northern State Teachers' college, Marquette, and John Bruce MacLaren, of Appleton, governor of the Tenth District of Rotary.

Speaking on the subject, "This Changing World of Ours," Dr. Pearce enumerated changes which have taken place in transportation, communication, clothes, religion, and education, saying that while many changes have taken place within the span of a single lifetime, not all of the changes could be called progressive.

The underlying fundamental principals of life, however, never change, declared the speaker, and it is to these principals which we must adhere if we wish to get out of this chaos. Success is not wrapped up in a form of government, but rather in the fundamentals of that government. Courage, loyalty, patriotism and integrity are the requisites of success, said Dr. Pearce advising those present to write the principal of integrity into their business and professional dealings. He came to the defense of the youth of today, saying that he believed they had the ability to carry the load if put to the test. His talk was liberally sprinkled with humorous anecdotes and was exceptionally entertaining and instructive.

Dr. George A. Shaw presided as toastmaster while R. H. Wilson president of the Manistique Rotary club delivered the official welcome to the guests. Responses were given by Harry Brackett in behalf of the Escanaba club, Floyd Marble, Gladstone; Leonard Ruggles, Munising; E. W. Stridl, Iron Mountain; and G. Harold Earle, Hermansville.

Past district governors who delivered short talks were Harlow Clark of Marquette; Ray Emmons, Gladstone; Charles Symonds, Iron Mountain, and John Olds, Sault Ste. Marie, past district governor of the 35th district.

Loca's Defeated

Sport awards were presented to William Skellenger of Gladstone, for low medal score, 41, in the golf matches while George C. Craver, of Escanaba, had the greatest number of strokes. Munising was the winner of the club tourney with an average of 45 1-2 Gladstone scored with 49 1-2 Manistique 53 2-5, Iron Mountain 57 1-2, Escanaba 58 1-4, and Sault Ste. Marie last with 59.

Gladstone was awarded the gilt indoor bat symbolic of the upper peninsula Rotary club diamond ball championship which has been held by the local club for the past five years or more. The Upbay Rotarians defeated the locals by a score of 7-6 in a hard fought seven inning game.

Herbert K. Peterson, of this city, provided the musical entertainment with two vocal solos which were heartily applauded. He was accompanied at the piano by William Lang, of Escanaba.

Marquette, with 19 delegates present, had the largest attendance.

Three Auto Mishaps Occur Over Sunday

Three automobile collisions occurred here Sunday resulting in damages to cars, but with no serious injuries to persons involved. Sunday afternoon a coupe driven by Carl Carlson collided with a sedan belonging to George Graphos, when Carlson, swerving to his left in order to avoid a collision with a car coming out onto the Indian Lake road from a side-road leading from the Edwin Needham residence, crashed into the Graphos car which was going in the direction of Indian Lake, throwing the coupe off the road and smashing a front wheel. Carlson was bruised about the eye and a cut in the wrist necessitated two stitches. The sedan sustained a broken radius rod.

Early Sunday evening a light truck driven by Ivan Schuster struck a sedan belonging to Chas. Ayotte which had been parked at the curb on Deer street near Weston avenue. Schuster, in attempting to negotiate the curve, crashed into the Ayotte car. Damages to the two vehicles approximates $60.

A third accident occurred on U.S-2 several miles east of this city on the curve at Duck Inn when a car plowed into the ditch at he sharp curve. It is said to have been the third accident which occurred at this point within the past ten days.

The mean or average altitude of the United States is about 2500 feet above sea level; the range in elevation is from 14,501 feet above sea level to 276 feet below.

Disappointing to Charles Brunt, a Hartford, Conn., janitor, was the marriage of his 19-year-old daughter, Ida, to a "nobody" instead of to "some nice Italian boy with a good paying fruit store or ice truck." Ellicott (above), who gave up a technical education in Detroit to elope to Calcutta with the girl proved to be son of the Rajah of Benares' favorite bandmaster and nephew of Lady Willey of London.

Plans for the most successful fair in the history of Schoolcraft county are rapidly being pushed forward by Legion officials, according to an announcement made yesterday. Braults Defeated By Germfask, 7-5

With Dodge hurling splendid baseball, the Germfask team defeated the Brault Specials Sunday afternoon at the fair grounds by a score of 7-5, coming from behind to defeat the locals before a crowd of some 500 fans.

Dodge, with the exception of the second innings when the Specials bunched four of their eight hits to count all of their five tallies, was invincible. He fanned 14 batsmen and was master in the pinches.

Germfask led off with a brace of tallies off Kerrigan in the first inning, but the five run rally by the Specials in the second erased the lead and put them three runs to the good. Both hurlers then settled down and scoring was at a premium until the first of the fifth when the invaders scored twice to come within striking distance.

Two more tallies in the sixth gave the Germfask men a one run lead and they added another in the eighth for good measure. Kerrigan who was found for nine hits was relieved by Chartier in the ninth. He held Germfask scoreless but yielded an additional hit.

Kerrigan had an off-day, and issued seven passes to Dodge's three. Fitzpatrick led the Germfask attack with three singles, while Kerrigan got the same number of safeties for the Specials.

The Specials yesterday announced games with Newberry and Cooks the former to play here next Sunday and the latter to be here on Labor Day.

BROWN TELLS OF PROBLEMS

Legislators Have Work Cut for Them in Next Two Years

Michigan legislators are faced with five perplexing problems which must be investigated and solved during the next two years, Rep. Vernon J. Brown of Mason told members of the Gladstone Rotary club at their regular luncheon-meeting yesterday noon. Rep. Brown came to the upper peninsula last week to attend a district meeting of the Michigan Press association, of which he is president, and remained here as the guest of J. A. Sturgeon to address the local club.

Revision of the state tax system is necessary, the speaker stated, and a start on the rewriting of the tax structure (the one in use having been established in 1836) was forced by the adoption of the 15 mill tax limitation amendment last fall. The sale tax he termed as an emergency measure and stated that in his belief it was inequitable and would remain in effect only so long as necessary.

Revision of the banking and credit structure in the state, which has been so badly crushed, was given by Rep. Brown as another problem facing legislators. He stated that the total loss through closed banks and sale of poor securities was appalling and that while rebuilding was necessary, to assure prevention of a situation such as developed this year, the rebuilding should be withheld until a future date.

State aid to schools was the third question which has to be solved. During the last legislature a bill was adopted which would provide 15 million dollars to aid schools, but the speaker said that in his opinion that five millions properly applied could be used to more advantage than the large sum distributed according to the provisions of the bill. He stated that the larger amount induced extravagance.

The welfare situation was listed as the fourth weighty problem and elimination of duplication of committees and expenditures as between state and local agencies was the fifth.

It was the speaker's opinion that thorough investigation of these problems by legislative councils and the placing of the results of these probes before the legislators would be highly beneficial in solving them satisfactorily.

Martin Bradley of Hermansville, who presided as speaker of the house during the last session of the legislature, was highly lauded by Rep. Brown. Bradley was termed "a man of fine capabilities and one of the most able men in the house."

Swedes Victorious Over Lierman Clan In Doubleheader

The Swedes gained a double victory over the Icemen in exhibition games played here Sunday afternoon in an effort to raise funds with which to finance Gladstone's teams in the upper peninsula soft ball tournament which is to be held in Escanaba soon.

The scores were 6 to 3 and 1 to 0. Sword and McIntyre did the hurling for the Swedes in the opener with Swan on the receiving end while Cole and Waeghe worked for the Icemen.

The second proved the better game of the two and a hurling duel between Couillard and Duchesney. The latter had a little better of the argument and set down the Icemen with but 2 safeties while Couillard allowed four. The Swedes forced their lone and winning run across in the second frame and were able to maintain the advantage. Bovin caught for Couillard while Swan again worked behind the plate for the Swedes.

OLD RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Nels Satterstrom Lived In Delta County for 16 Years

Nels Satterstrom, 72, of Perkins, resident of Delta county for nearly a half a century, died Monday morning at St. Vincent's hospital, Green Bay, where he was admitted a week ago to undergo an operation.

Mr. Satterstrom was born June 6, 1861, in Varmland, Sweden, and came to the United States as a young man, settling at Pentwater, Mich. After a time he returned to his homeland for five years, during which period he married Christina Persson, who preceded him in death nine years ago. Returning to the United States in 1877, the Satterstroms settled at Ford River, where Mr. Satterstrom was employed by the old Ford River Lumbering company. For a time the family resided in Escanaba and then moved to Perkins, where Mr. Satterstrom was engaged in timber jobbing and farming.

The survivors include the widow, the former Anna Englund of Ford River, whom Mr. Satterstrom married in 1926, three sons and four daughters. The children are: Hugo and Axel, Perkins; Oscar, Manistique; Mrs. Anna Lindberg and Miss Hulda Satterstrom, Milwaukee; Mrs. Ted Ohlen (Selma), Gladstone, and Mrs. Alvina Neitzke, Wauwatosa, Wis. There is also a sister in Alpena and a brother in Sweden.

The body will arrive from Green Bay this morning and will be taken to the Swenson Brothers mortuary, Wednesday at 11 a. m. it will be taken to the First Lutheran church at Gladstone, where it will lie in state until the funeral services at 2 p. m. The Rev. C. E. Olsson will officiate, and burial will be in the family plot in Fernwood cemetery.

Gladstone Rotes Beat Manistique, Bring Back Title

Persistence has been rewarded! After several years of endeavor, representatives of the Gladstone Rotary club came back from the annual upper peninsula Rotary round-up at Blaney last Saturday with the mythical soft ball championship in their possession. They also had trophies emblematic of the title.

A team representing Manistique, a ten which had won the title so often that it became a sort of a rite, was defeated by a score of 7 to 6. Three homers by Hugh Cavill, William Skellenger and Louis Empson in the first inning gave the locals a working margin and took some of the wind out of the sails of the Schoolcrafters. The local team was organized and coached by Dr. A. H. Kimmond.

Individual honors in golf also went to a Gladstone man. Wm. Skellenger being low with a 41. Munising, however, won in the foursome.

A banquet was served at 6:30 in Bear Creek Lodge and Webster H. Pearce, head of Northern State Teachers college, Marquette, was the speaker of the evening.

Dr. McLaren of Appleton, Wis., governor of this Rotary district was present and gave an informal talk.

SCHOOL BUDGET IS CERTIFIED

Slightly Over $20,000 To Be Raised Through Taxation

A sum of $20,037.49 will be spread on the tax rolls for collection to assist in financing the operation of schools in Gladstone.

The school budget for the year 1933-34 as accepted by the board of education at a regular meeting on August 2, was received by the city commission in session last night, and was certified.

The budget calls for a total expenditure of $66,560, of which amount $1,560 is for debt service or interest on outstanding school bonds.

Of the total amount, slightly over $20,000 will be raised by taxation upon the real and personal property listed on the rolls. The tax commission allocated 8.9 mills to the city schools. This is inclusive of debt service.

This levy computed on a total assessed valuation of $2,076,123 gives a sum of $18,477.49. Debt service added to this brings the sum to $20,037.49. The amount for debt service is low as there are no bonds to be retired in 1934, all of them expiring in that year having been retired previously.

The budget as submitted:

General control accts.	$ 5,000
Instructional service	43,500
School plant and operation	11,000
Fixed Charges	1,000
Maintenance	1,500
Auxiliary and coordinate accounts	2,500
Capitol outlay	500
	$65,000
Debt service	1,560
	$66,560

Hog Production Cut Expected To Cost 52 Million

Washington, Aug. 26 (AP)—A hearing on the proposed processing tax on meat products, depended upon to pay the cost of the government's emergency campaign to reduce the supply of pigs and farrowing sows, today was set for September 5.

This will be the first public hearing on a processing tax. The levies in effect on wheat and cotton were the difference, theoretically, between the market price and parity price for the commodities.

No public hearing is necessary if the processing tax covers the spread between market and parity price but if it is less, a public hearing must be held. The proposed levy on hog products, estimated at about half a cent a pound—is considerable below the difference between parity and the price swine are bringing now.

The parity price on all the basic commodities named in the farm act save tobacco is the sum at which they must sell to have the average purchasing power they had from 1909 to 1914.

The estimate of the cost of the hog reduction campaign is around $52,000,000. The edible products from the hogs will be turned over to the federal relief administration and the organization probably will pay about $9,000,000 for the ofodstuffs. The processing tax is depended upon to hauss about $43,000,000.

Tiges Nip Yanks; Pirates Take Double Victory

SORRELL GETS NEAR SHUTOUT

Only 4 Hits as Detroit Takes Easy 6-1 Win Over New York

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—Vic Sorrell, slender Tiger southpaw, came within an inning today of becoming the second pitcher to blank the Yankees in 334 games as he led Detroit td an easy 6 to 1 victory.

Sorrell pitched hitless ball for six innings and allowed only two hits up to the ninth. Then Dixie Walker tripled and Babe Ruth singled him home. Four hits were all Sorrell allowed as Detroit evened the series at two games all.

The Tigers had two big innings at the expense of Johnny Allen, who retired for a pinch hitter in the eighth with Danny MacFayden finishing.

Four runs developed in the third on walks to Hayworth and Rogell, Fox's single, doubles by Gehringer and Gerald Walker, and a wild pitch. In the seventh Rogells single and a brace of triples by Gehringer and Walker added the final pair.

For five innings Sorrell's work was absolutely perfect. There were no hits and no free trips to first base. In fact, not a Yankee got to first bass on any account. The be-spectacled Bengal struck out five batters, among them Babe Ruth, who fanned twice, and Lou Gehrig.

Lefty Grove is the only pitcher who has succeeded in shutting out the Yankees in the last two seasons, and Sorrell has come the closest of the season to joining him in the feat.

The Tigers close the series here against the Yanks with a game tomorrow in which Fred Marberry and Charles Devens probably will do the pitching.

The Washington Senators were rained out at Cleveland today, and the defeat left the Yankees nine games behind the Senators in the battle for first place.

National Doubles Tennis Title Changes Hands

NGLISH WOMAN GOLF CHAMPION

nid Wilson Rips Par Wide Open at Exmoor

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Exmoor Club, Highland Park, L., Aug. 28 (AP)—Ripping par to rds over the final three holes ith a spectacular finish that ertook a trio of America's great- shot makers, Enid Wilson, ueen of England's fairways, cap- red the women's national golf ampionship at Exmoor today ith the lowest total in 37 years f play.

Trailing the leaders and par by ne shot at the 16th tee, the usky 23-year-old English champ- ion blazed forth with two birdies nd a finishing eagle for a record reaking 76 and the medal. She ad a margin of two shots over er closest American rivals, Vir- inia Van Wie of Chicago, defend- ng titlsholder; Maureen Orcutt f Haworth, N. J., and Helen Hicks of New York.

Only four times in the history f the championship, which hasn't een won by a foreign entrant ince Gladys Ravenscroft of Eng- and turned the trick 20 years go, has 77 been scored in the big show of American women's golf. Alexa Stirling Fraser did it in 1925 at St. Louis; Ada MacKenzie f Canada, who qualified today with a high 85 to give the title rive a double international hreat, duplicated it at Cherry Valley, N. Y., in 1927 and Miss Van Wie and Miss Orcutt tied it lest year at Salem.

Mighty tee shots and long irons, lead to the green, carried Miss Wilson to her record breaking to- tal. On the 420 yard sixteenth and 480 yard seventeenth, she whaled the ball 220 yards straight down the fairway and steered number two iron shots straight to the green to make women's par look easy with birdie fours. On the 390 yard final hole, she sent her iron second shot eight feet from the cup and dropped it.

Six birdies and one eagle decor- ated her card. Her only bad hole was the 375 yard fourteenth where she attempted to recover from a flat trap with a wood and muffled the shot completely, wind- ing up with a six on the par four hole. Her rounds were 39-37, a performances that beat women's par by three shots and the com- petitive course record by two.

Fatalities among the title favor- ites were exceptionally low in con- trast to last year when Miss Hicks failed to qualify in defense of her title. There were a few that fal- tered but none of them were rated as serious championship contend- ers. Bea Gottlieb, Tuckahoe, N. Y., who got into the headlines re- cently by defeating the Prince of Wales, failed to qualify. Others, who failed, included Phyllis Buchanan of Denver, trans-Missis- sippi champion; Mrs. Gregg Lifur, Los Angeles; Bernice Wall, Osh- kosh, Wis.; Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., usually a contender, and Mrs. Joseph Palma of Honolulu, three times Hawaiian champion.

Dodge Heiress May Pilot Speed Boat

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—The 1933 gold cup motorboat races on the Detroit river may see Del- phine Dodge Baker, heiress to the Dodge motor fortune and a one- time national motorboat enthusi- ast, as a pilot of one of the doz- en or more high speed boats.

Arriving here hastily from England, Mrs. Baker today don- ned mechanic's uniform and life belt, sped at a better than 50- mile-an-hour clip around the gold cup course on the river, and indi- cated she is thinking of entering as a pilot of the Delphine VII, one of five boats prepared for the race by her brother, Horace Dodge, defender of the cup.

"Delphine is the world's best woman race boat pilot," said brother Horace, commenting on her speed at the trial run. All the Dodge boats are named "Del- phine," the five fast racing craft being designated otherwise by number.

'RABBIT' HAS SOUND LEGS

Maranville Is 10 But He Still Is Fast Infielder

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

Strange indeed is the coinci- dence that sees the New York Yankees failing as their pace- maker Babe Ruth fades, while the Boston Braves rally around a little wizened standard bearer even older than Ruth, in their drive to catch the Giants.

Maranville

Rabbit Maran- ville is better than 40 years old. He's been around the ma- jor leagues long- er than the Babe's 20 sea- sons. He's been given up as worn out and broken down even oftener than Ruth. His situation, in fact, was worse at times than the Babe's. When the Rabbit fell from grace they shipped him back to the minors. Babe at least stayed in the league.

But today Ruth is sliding steadily toward a job managing some club. His days as a regu- lar outfielder are numbered. He just can't go get them day in and day out any more.

And what about Maranville's legs as he dances around Boston's second base, as fast and tireless today as when he first bobbed up with Fall River in the old New England league? These are per- haps the greatest legs in baseball history. During the time that Ruth has worn out his pair in the comparative calm and inactivity of right field, Maranville has traveled at top speed through the years, always as an infielder, busiest, hardest working player on the club.

Load Is Light

Maranville explained the sound- ness of his legs, and the rickety state of Ruth's underpinning one day at the Polo Grounds.

"Look at me," he said. "Soak- ing wet I can't go a pound over 140. That's not much for a good pair of legs to carry around for 25 years of baseball.

"Now take a gander at Ruth. His legs are no bigger than mine, no better muscled. And look what he's toting around on them. A lot of the time he's up around 235 and he hasn't been below 225 in ten years. That's what's tak- en the snap out of his dogs."

Maranville can see no reason why his career is approaching a conclusion. Never a .300 hitter, his eye is still keen and he's as tough at the plate in a pinch as any player in baseball.

There's just enough clown in his makeup to get the crowds grinning with him at the catch he invented, the "vest pocket" catch. He has given many a manager a headache watching him wander around second base or shortstop with his hands cupped against his chest, waiting to snare a lofty pop against his letters.

"I ought to keep going for at least five more years," he said this spring.

Up at Nine

There was a time, about five years ago, when the Rabbit's ca- reer was about over. The Cards sent him to Rochester because of his failure to keep in condition. He had been looking deeply into the cup that cheers and he was a pretty sick little fellow when he hit Rochester.

Mrs. Maranville sat beside his hospital cot and stroked his hand.

"It's all right," she said. "Don't fuss. I've saved enough money without telling you about it to buy us a house. We're going to settle down here. You're going to be a star again, and everything will be all right."

The next year he was back in the majors.

KEEP HIM IN MIND

Nick Kobseff, a 16-year-old pitcher in the American Legion junior baseball tournament at San Francisco, recently struck out 36 batters in 18 innings.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

BY BILL BRAUCHER

Who's the Hero?

Joe Carr, chief of the National Association of Professional Foot- ball leagues, outlines a brilliant program for the pro game . . . there will be a chain system simi- lar to the St. Louis Cardinals' chain baseball stores . . . likely candidates will serve an appren- ticeship in the bushes and merit will be rewarded.

It sounds like an up-and-com- ing proposition . . . and the rea- son such a lineup ought to click lies with youth . . . professional football hasn't had a hero . . . and that is largely what has been the matter with the game.

The Pioneers

Pro football players used to be washed-up collegians . . . the teams were made up mostly of men who had gone to school pri- marily to play football . . . after their college days were over, they went through the pantomime of playing the game in which they had been so well drilled.

During the last couple of years some earnest people have worked into the pastime . . . fellows with vision and with the energy and determination necessary to put their dreams into practice.

Pro football has lots to live down . . . memories of the days when most of the players were fellows trying to live without working . . . but who strolled through plays with the idea of fooling the people in the stands . . . it was a listless effort and the paying clientele didn't go for it.

That Old Ghost

Then there was the Red Grange incident . . . here was a super-star who was lured from the college gridiron for gold alone . . . leav- ing memories of brilliant heroism at Penn, Michigan and on other fields of battle . . . he was hailed with millions of words and plen- ty of money.

But the memory of his choice lingered . . . and still does . . . but youth is coming up in the game now . . . and youth can wipe out many blotches.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The college background of tradition is something the pro game is sadly without . . . in this respect the game lacks the appeal to fans that baseball has, with its Old Hoss Rad- bourne, Cy Young and others of a distant generation . . . something about the old Army songs, the Yale fence, the lit- tle brown jugs, the old oaken bucket of Indiana and similar stories from the past work in- to the hearts of football fol- lowers.

Athletics Prove Too Strong For Jones and Lyons

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics caught up with Sam Jones in the seventh inning today and renewed their assault against Ted Lyons in the ninth to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 5, and even up the series.

Jones held the A's under con- trol for six frames, while the Sox worked up a 4 to 1 lead at the expense of Merrit (Sugar) Cain. In the seventh, however, Phila- delphia bounced the righthander with a four run drive and thump- ed Lyons for four more in the ninth. Jim Peterson held the Sox to three hits in the last four innings and was credited with the victory.

ST. LOUIS PUTS ON PUSH IN 9TH

National League Leaders Have Been Defeated 3 Out of 4

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—A booming seven run drive in the ninth inning gave the Cardinals a 12 to 8 victory over the Giants today, and ran the National league leaders' string of defeats to three in the past four games, with one tie.

Parmelee rode the shifting tide in a pitching duel splattered with home runs until the ninth, when with the Giants leading 7 to 6, Bob O'Farrell, veteran catcher, banged his second home run of the afternoon up into the left field seats after Ethan Allen, batting for Slade, opened with a single.

Parmelee was taken out then and Schumacher, who was beaten by the Cards yesterday when they won one game and tied the sec- ond in a double header, replaced him but not for long. Crawford batted for Dazzy Vance, who had replaced Carleton in the eighth, and walked. Then in quick suc- cession Pepper Martin singled, Crawford scored on a wild pitch and Schumacher left for the showers in favor of Lefty Watson Clark.

Clark's troubles were immed- iate. He walked Watkins, Fran- kie Frisch singled and Joe Med- wick boomed them home with a triple to deep left center. Med- wick scored on an infield out and the rampage was over.

With Dizzy Dean replacing Vance, the Giants made a final effort in the ninth and scored two runs on singles by Moore, Critz and Davis. Bill Terry fan- ned in the heart of the rally and Dean worked easily behind his big lead, finally getting Vergez for the final out on a bounder to Martin.

Challenger Tries Out River Course; Gar Wood Is Busy

Algonac, Mich., Aug. 28 (AP)—For the first time since he brought his Little Miss Britain III here a week ago, Hubert Scott-Paine today sent the Harmsworth challenger around the course on which he will con- test for the trophy with Gar Wood, beginning next Saturday.

The defender, Miss America X also was out on the river today but only for a brief run to try out the re-installed motors, gear box and super-chargers which had been taken out over the week end.

In his first trial run this morn- ing around the Harmsworth course, Scott-Paine was able to inspect the rather abrupt turns the narrow course with its two three mile straightaways em- braces. They apparently bother- ed him little, however, for he again put his craft through a series of maneuvers strange to Harmsworth contenders.

Tulane will dedicate a new gymnasium during the coming football season.

Vines and Gledhill Lose to Two Franks

BY BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 28 (AP)—The deadly smashing of six-foot- three Frank X. Shields of New York, reinforced by the brilliant but not always steady play of 17- year-old Frankie Parker of Mil- waukee, today forced Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill to abdi- cate their national doubles tennis thrones in the semi-final round of the current title play at Long- wood.

The defending titlists, after overcoming a two-set lead to square the match, finally bowed by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 2-6, 6-2 and, as if in sympathy, the sky was immediately darkened by the heavy clouds of a fast-gathering thunderstorm.

Under almost twilight condi- tions, the other semi-finalists went into action, George Lott of Chica- go and Lester Stoefen of Los An- geles against Adrian K. Quist and Don Turnbull of Australia. These international rivals managed to play 13 games in the fast fading light before demanding a post- ponement. Lott and Stoefen, by breaking Quist in the seventh game, managed to pull out the first set at 6-4. The Aussies led two games to one on service in the second set when they agreed with their American rivals that the visibility was much too poor for first class tennis.

In an effort to give the fair- sized gallery a run for its money, officials then called for the na- tional mixed doubles semi-final play with Elizabeth Ryan, the Californian resident of England, and Vines on one side of the court and Dorothy Round and Fred Per- ry, the crack Britishers, on the other. They managed to complete 11 games before the storm broke suddenly and turned their court into a duck-pond in less than 15 minutes.

The American's slashing play gave them the opening set at 6-2, but the British team led two games to one on service when rained out in the second. Both of these postponed matches will be resumed tomorrow and, as a result, the final matches in both national competitions, originally scheduled for last Saturday, will go over until Wednesday.

Shields, whose Newport victory over Vines marked him for tennis greatness, boosted his doubles play to a new high in the smash- ing victory over Vines and Gled- hill, who have been campaigning together for five years, during which they have visited every ma- jor tennis front in the world.

Parker was a powerful aid dur- ing the early and late stages of the matches but he was unable to gear up his game when Vines and Gledhill tried to fan their latent fire into a victorious conflagra- tion.

Trailing by two sets, Vines opened up all of his devastating fury. He put every ounce of force into his terrific smashes as he led Gledhill through the bombard- ment against little Parker.

The Milwaukee boy was a bit slow adjusting himself to the op- positions changed tactics but he was more than able to take care of his side of the court during the decisive fifth set play.

KIPKE TO TRY "RUMP WHEEL"

Wolverine Gridders To Go Through Some Queer Actions

BY MERLE OLIVER

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—Foot- ball guards will go through some queer actions in a new formation which Coach Harry Kipke of the University of Michigan plans to use this fall. Kipke calls the formation the "rump wheel" or "guard wheel."

Harry Kipke

"Modern guards," said the Michigan coach, "are the key men of offensive plays. They do as much running as any member of the team. The guards have played in comparative obscurity since the days of Pennsylvania's 'guards back' play of forty years ago. Our rump wheel should to- cus attention of the spectators upon them."

"Rump wheel" simply means that the guards turn their back toward the enemy without think- ing of retreat. Sometimes they will line up facing their own back- field and wheel into the line just before the ball is snapped. Or they can lineup facing the oppo- nents and do an about-face a sec- ond before the play starts. One can face Michigan's goal while the other faces the opponents. There are numerous combina- tions.

Adds Deception

Kipke claims there will be sev- eral advantages, including a step or step-and-a-half start when the guards come out of the line to lead plays. Michigan guards come out of the line to form in- terference on 75 per cent of all plays, so Kipke believes the "rump wheel" will add decep- tion rather than give opponents an inkling of what is coming.

When guards come out of the line to open a path for the ball carrier off tackle or around end, they must turn about first if they are facing the opponents. The time required to turn is saved if they already are facing the back- field. The "rump wheel" is de- signed to give slightly slower guards a better start.

Successful in Practice

Coming out of the line sooner, the guards will leave holes through which defensive guards can charge more quickly.

"That is just what we want," said Kipke. "If the opposing guard comes through too soon, our tackle can cross-block, and the play can be run through the hole the over-anxious defensive guard left."

The "rump wheel" was tried in spring practice and resulted in touchdowns. The coach was sat- isfied and announced it would be part of Michigan's system this fall.

"Pid" Purdy's .366 batting average was enough to keep him at the top of Texas league hitters for the two weeks he was out of the San Antonio lineup with an injured knee.

NRA CAMPAIGN IS UNDER WAY

All Escanaba Employers Under Blue Eagle Is Objective

A campaign to get every Escanaba employer operating under the blue eagle was launched yesterday by the advisory committee of the National Recovery Administration.

It is hoped that by the end of the week that every employer of labor will have signed either the blanket code or the agreement that pertains to his particular class of business. Those who have signed the blanket code will automatically go on the special code by complying with the provisions of the new agreement.

It was brought out yesterday that there still exists considerable misunderstanding concerning the NRA, but anyone who is not clear on any phases of the program may obtain the desired information at the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce office.

Employers who find that some of the provisions of the code are impossible are asked to prepare a petition to the NRA, asking for a stay or postponement of these provisions which would produce an "unavoidable hardship." Blue eagles also will be awarded in such cases.

NRA EXPLAINED

Washington (AP)—The national recovery administration has issued the following statement for the information of the public, outlining and summarizing what the NRA is doing and what it hopes to do:

The president's emergency re-employment campaign is one of the activities which has been devised in order to give effect to the National Industrial Recovery Act passed by the last congress. It is supplementary to the plan of code adoption by various industrial and trade groups which has for its purpose the elimination of unfair competition, the establishment of more equable rewards for labor, the spread of employment and the control of production. This plan for speeding business recovery is rapidly being made effective, and the blue eagle campaign does not mean that there will be the slightest let-up in the drive to make general the adoption of codes by industries and trade groups.

The president's re-employment plan is intended to bridge time and to bring the nation out of the depression more rapidly than if the code adoption plan were depended upon exclusively. The president's agreement also covers many business groups that would not be amenable to any of the code arrangements.

Seek Five Million Jobs

Beginning Monday an intensive drive will be carried on throughout the country to speed up the blue eagle campaign and make its benefits immediately effective. Some 1,500,000 volunteer workers are making a block-to-block canvas in an effort to get every employer in America under the blue eagle and a consumer's insignia in every home.

The president's emergency re-employment campaign may be described briefly as a plan to add from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 persons to the nation's payrolls immediately through agreements made with the president of the United States by some 5,000,000 concerns or individuals, employing two or more persons each.

In order that this number of jobs may be made available, it will be necessary, of course, for employers in many cases to shorten working hours. The plan also provides for certain minimum wage scales which also in many cases will mean added labor costs for the employer.

The president's agreement, however, includes a pledge of cooperation from the consuming public, and it is thus anticipated that the employer, while undertaking a larger expense as the direct result of his agreement with the president, will gain added patronage as the just reward of his public spirited attitude.

The fact also is to be borne in mind that where all employers act together to put people back on their payrolls or to raise wages, no employer, as the president himself has pointed out, "will suffer because the relative level of competitive cost will advance by the same amount for all."

Peninsula Bakers Discuss Problems

Ishpeming—Problems confronting the baking industry, especially in their relation to the NRA code, were discussed by more than 50 members of the new organized Upper Peninsula Bakers association, who gathered here this afternoon for a luncheon and business meeting in the Mather inn.

Because of the fact that no definite decision was reached regarding policies, Sherwin Overholt, of Sault Ste. Marie, president of the organization, declined to make any statement as to plans of the U. P. association. However, he said that the upper peninsula association has decided to become affiliated with the Michigan Bakers association and its actions will be governed to a large extent by those taken by the state group.

Regan Gives Talk

W. J. Regan, of Detroit, president of the state association, and H. J. Balkema, of Grand Rapids, secretary, addressed the gathering, outlining the NRA plans of the Michigan Bakers association and explaining some of the problems arising in the lower section of the state.

Overholt said that directors of the U. P. association will meet September 10 in Sault Ste. Marie, at which time the place and date for the next meeting of the upper peninsula group will be decided.

Sugar Queen Has Two Black Eyes; Reign Too Short

Caro, Mich., Aug. 26 (AP)—Queen for a day, and then—smash!

That is the story so far of Miss Bertha Binder, of Sebewaing, 17, chosen sugar queen yesterday from a field of 35 contestants from cities in Michigan's sugar belt.

Shortly after she was named queen, Miss Binder suffered a broken nose and two black eyes when an auto in which she was a passenger was wrecked. The airplane trip to Chicago and a visit to the World's Fair will be postponed.

Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald placed the crown on Queen Bertha's head. Former State Senator C. M. Howell, of Chesaning, introduced a pageant during which the various queens were presented for the judges' approval. Queen Bertha's float was the only one drawn by horses—a pair of prize Belgians.

It is expected that about forty contractors and highway engineers will attend the meeting, which has been called for the purpose of discussing the new state law regulating the practice of taking bids and awarding contracts on public work construction, maintenance or repair work, and providing a means of prohibiting those not qualified by experience, financial resources or any other valid reason from undertaking such public construction work. Policies of the state highway department also will be outlined.

V. B. Steinbaugh, Lansing, road engineer of the state highway department, and Jack Gunnell, Lansing, managing director of the Michigan Road Builders' association, will be among the speakers on the program, Mr. Sparks said yesterday. Mr. Steinbaugh will make a tour of the upper peninsula next week to inspect various proposed construction projects.

A special committee of contractors, composed of Herman Holmes, Crystal Falls, Pat Thornton, Hancock, and M. J. Bacco, Iron Mountain, has been appointed to assist Mr. Sparks in making arrangements for the meeting.

A banquet will be held at the Crystal Inn at 6:30 o'clock in the evening.

AMUSEMENTS

If you still have a laugh gland left, don't miss "When Ladies Meet."

This sparkling new film opened Sunday at the Delft theatre with a roar of laughter from start to finish and with Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery co-starred in one of the most unusual stories we have seen on the screen in many months.

Adapted from the Rachel Crothers play that hit Broadway with a smash this season, the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture is crammed full of sure-fire situations and dialogue that afford the important personages in the cast to make the most of it. Miss Harding is superb as the wife of a philandering husband and Montgomery scores anew as the newspaper reporter who finds his girl having a dangerous interest in the married man.

Myrna Loy is magnificent as the girl in the case and Alice Brady returns to films to win a new triumph in the comedy role of the merry widow hostess of a week-end party that winds up in fireworks. Frank Morgan is the husband and the cast includes Martin Burton and Luis Alberni.

Harry Beaumont directed the picture and may be credited with a matchless job. The settings are particularly impressive and the camera work is of the best.
